Evidence to Be Given Concerning Former President's Official and Private Life Regarding Use of Intoxicants

By Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Mich., May 28—(Special)—Former testimony to show the assassin's habits in the dining room was resumed today in the libel suit of Theodore Roosevelt against George F. Ruggles, publisher of the "Iron Ore" of Marquette, Mich., who charged him with sobriety.

During court proceedings the former president sat quietly, rarely raising his heavy brows, but he was not without interest and frequently raised his eyebrows at the defendant's counsel. He was not at all perturbed by the fact that his name was being used in a libel suit.

Although Colonel Roosevelt, on referring to Ruggles' charges, said he had been "suing" Ruggles, he said he had been "suing" Ruggles in an "immoderate degree" and that he had been "suing" Ruggles in an "immoderate degree" and that he had been "suing" Ruggles in an "immoderate degree."

CONLEY TELLS IN DETAIL OF WRITING NOTES IN SATURDAY ATTENTION OF MR. FRANK

Negro Declares He Met Mr. Frank on the Street and Accompanied Him Back to the Factory, Where He Was Told to Wait and Watch—He Was Concealed in Wardrobe in Office When Voices Were Heard on Outside, It is Claimed

NEGRO LOOKED UP AS A TOOL NOT PRINCIPAL
DECLARE DETECTIVES WHO HAVE QUESTIONED HIM

Chief Beavers Confers With Judge Roan in Reference to Talking Conley to Tower to Confess—Frank but is Told That It is a Question for Sheriff to Decide—No Effort in This Direction Likely Until Mr. Rosser Returns to City

"Write 'night-watcherman,' the city detectives are said to have commanded James Conley, negro sweeper & the pencil factory, in jail Wednesday.

The result is said to have been "night-watcherman." So the city found behind the dead body of Mary Phagan spelled it.

The detectives regard this strongly corroborative of Conley's admission that he wrote them, however, at the dictation of Leo M. Frank, superintendent of the pencil factory, under indictment for the murder. The negro, since he has declared that he did the writing on Saturday afternoon instead of on Friday afternoon as the first story, and has gone into detail.

A new and lengthy affidavit, going into detail in sequence throughout the day of the fatal Saturday, was sworn by the city in the detective headquarters Wednesday morning.

In it the negro related as minutely as he could remember them, his actions and movements upon that day.

Shortly after 10 o'clock he was standing at the corner of Fourth and Main streets, he now swears, when Leo M. Frank, superintendent of the factory, his employer, came past, going toward Monte Brothers. Frank followed him to the factory, where he was concealed in a wardrobe in the office.

Frank told him to wait until he came back, and he went into detail. A new and lengthy affidavit, going into detail in sequence throughout the day of the fatal Saturday, was sworn by the city in the detective headquarters Wednesday morning.

He was careful not to let Mr. Darley see you," the negro swears Mr. Frank told him.

Conley continued in detail in his affidavit, it is said, describing every detail of the events that transpired at the factory after the murder.

He crossed himself and responded to Mr. Frank's call. At the head of the stairs Mr. Frank caught him under the arm, where the negro was standing, and he was taken to the jail.

Remnant Day in the Wash Goods

At Nine o'Clock Friday

These Remnant Sales of ours work splendid economies! That is because the materials they bring are always reasonable and wanted kinds and because we, having in mind only the cleaning up of stocks, mark each remnant at a price that will move it. The remnant may be just the length and all that you want—we do not allow that our viewpoint, to change ours. To us it is still a remnant and therefore must be out. So read the list of materials that are in remnant lengths here tomorrow; and you who have dresses, skirts, underwear and waists to make for yourself or children save—
