AFFIDAVIT OBTAINED
IN WASHINGTON, D. C.

M. C. February Gives Out a Statement, Telling How Notes Were Transcribed and Affidavits Made

The accuracy of the now famous dictograph record of alleged conversations between Thomas B. Feller, Mayor Woodward, C. C. February, E. O. Miles and J. C. Conley and J. C. Conley is being called in question by an affidavit which M. C. February has obtained from George Gentry, a young stenographer who took down the dictograph conversations. The affidavit, which was obtained in Washington, D. C., where Miles, one of the dictographers, is now residing, repudiates the transcript which was sworn to by Miles. In this affidavit Gentry explains the dictograph record was made by dictating a number of changes were made in the transcript. He also states that the transcript was made by Miles, one of the dictographers, and that he had no knowledge of the contents of the transcript. Gentry also states that he had no knowledge of the contents of the transcript and that he had no knowledge of the contents of the transcript.
