BOTTENFIELD SELLS 1,000 HOME SITES IN A YEAR

Real Estate Agency's Increased Business Necessitates More Space for Offices

Atlanta builds approximately 2,000 new homes every year, bringing into circulation as many building lots, so when one man sells 1,000 home sites within the space of a year or a little more, it must be an achievement of which only one man can boast.

Yet that is the record of L. P. Bottenfield, whose agency will remove tomorrow from the tenth to the eleventh floor of the Empire building—a removal necessitated by rapid expansion of the business of the entire floor and three times the amount of space available in the offices.

Mr. Bottenfield and his staff of fifty have actually sold within little more than a year a total of 1,000 home lots located in sixteen different subdivisions, everyone of which has been handled with success.

To do this has required an executive ability far beyond the ordinary and the organization of a selling staff every member of which is not only an opportunity but who knows what team work is and how to get into team harness and stay.

A Little History.
Mr. Bottenfield is about ten years ago and his first venture was in the direction of real estate. He bought a farm of seventy acres at Decatur, for which he paid $4,000, and a short time afterwards he was offered $2,500 for the same piece of property. He had demonstrated the buying ability, and he began at once to think about the real estate business and to plan to enter that field.

His business began to grow from the start and has proved one success after another until today he has one of the strongest and best organized selling forces in the country comprising fifty members, all heavily equipped with permits which Atlanta real estate officers and salesmen to give them the advantage of a situation to a customer.

Necessity for Removal.
Naturally with a force of fifty Mr. Bottenfield has for some time felt himself cramped and handicapped in the office he has long occupied on the tenth floor of the Empire building; but business development and success have impressed on him the importance of a more desirable location and he has patiently awaited the opportunity to get what he desired—fifteen large offices on the eleventh floor of the same building.

This removal was necessitated alone by the demand for more room for the agency force and by the requirement of more space for the city and subdivision sales departments, but also from the fact that a new and important department will be added to the business—the building department.

It is Mr. Bottenfield's purpose both to build homes for those who have purchased lots from him in his various subdivisions, wherever they desire it and when a certain definite amount has been paid on the lot, and also to improve by the building of houses for sale, other lots in these same subdivisions which he retains.

It is his purpose to improve and assist in the development of the subdivisions in which he has sold lots, and every such improvement made will, in the long run, add value to the remaining property in the subdivision. It is further his purpose to add lawyer, insurance and loan departments to facilitate the work of home building.

Some of the Subdivisions.
Among the sixteen tracts developed, subdivided and sold under Mr. Bottenfield's direction are Atlanta, Atlanta, coming popular residence sections, In Peachtree, Hurst there were sold 160 lots within a period of six weeks. There were 116 lots sold in East Lake park. There were just thirty lots in the Home Crest subdivision, all of which were bought by one person before the sale was scheduled.

Other subdivisions include Woodrose, Haskeland, Kirkwood, Hebert, Peachtree, Glenmont, Park, Oakland Terrace, Woodlawn Park, Ponce de Leon Heights and others in which more than 600 lots have been sold, with a list of a few months.

The record is one that speaks for itself, and there is small wonder that removal to larger and more spacious quarters became imperative.

FORT SCREVEN OFFICER PUTS BAN ON SALOONS

SAYANNAH, Ga., Nov. 1.—Colonel Walker, who commands Fort Screven, the government post on Tybee island, has issued an order creating a "dry" saloon area for half the island, the sides of the post into when no saloons may go.

Guards have been posted with orders to arrest those who attempt to break this restriction.

Colonel Walker's idea is to stop the patronage of two saloons that are just outside the post. He has evidently succeeded in stopping the sale of whiskey and beer adjacent to the post. He has also stopped the sale of alcohol "near" the post exchange because "near" means it intoxicated some of those who drank it.

New Improvement in Composite Roofing—Atlanta Man Secured Patent.

Of recent inventions one of the most important and far-reaching is that of Mr. W. L. Barnhart of Atlanta, on which patent has just been granted for improvement in COMPOSITE ROOFING which promises to revolutionize the roofing business throughout the country.

Mr. Barnhart's new composite roofing has many advantages over the old style. It is only one-half as heavy, while at the same time has double the thickness, owing to the fact that it has no surplus or excess gravel and is made of a special asphalt material reinforced with expanded metal, giving it great strength and lasting qualities, making it available for all climates and many other purposes which would be impossible for other forms of roofing. This roof is especially suitable for flat residence porches, permanent office and business buildings and the highest grade of Manufacturing Plants, Railroads, Warehouses, etc.

The new roof is made on the building, having no joints or seams. Mr. Barnhart states it is his intention to create a new era in roofing and to place the possession of this invention and contract for the same under his specifications and supervision everywhere in the United States. He has had wide experience in the manufacture of and contracting of roofs, and with

BANK FAILURE INVOLVES TWO OTHER INSTITUTIONS

Negro Concern and Planting Company Were Dependent on Defunct Bank

(By Associated Press.)
NATCHEES, Miss., Nov. 1.—Twenty-one depositors in the First Natchez bank, which suspended Wednesday, signed a petition asking Chancellor Carter to substitute Gerard Brandon, a local attorney, for E. Samuels as co-receiver with H. Lee Wood.

As the funds of the Buist City Savings bank, a Negro institution, were on deposit in the First Natchez, the former was closed Friday and a receiver will be appointed. The liabilities are about $15,000.

The Thomas River Planting company, domiciled in Vidalia, La., owning five plantations in Concordia and Catahoula parishes, was forced into receivership on account of the First Natchez bank failure. These properties were financed by the defunct bank. The liabilities and assets are placed at the same amount, $100,000.

Artist Begins Work on Gen. Kell's Portrait For Georgia Capitol

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 1.—The portrait of General John McKinstry Kell which Miss Emma Wilkins had been commissioned by the Georgia legislature to paint, is now outlined on the canvas at Miss Wilkins' studio. The portrait is to hang on the walls of the capitol at Atlanta.

Miss Wilkins began the actual work on the picture two weeks ago, after she had collected photographs from all over the state of Georgia of the famous general. Most of these were given by members of the Kell family in Griffin. From among these Miss Wilkins selected one which shows the general standing in his Confederate uniform with his sword by his side. It is upon this photograph that the main features of the portrait are being taken. The same is more than six feet high and the portrait is being done in heraldic size.

UNITED WON'T BUY THE CHATTANOOGA TROLLEYS

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Nov. 1.—Superintendent E. D. Reed, of the Chattanooga Railway and Light company, declared today that the street railway system of Chattanooga will be absorbed by the United Gas and Electric corporation, which according to rumors in the east is planning to take over the street railway in several southern cities.

Mrs. Amos Tuck French, who has been here rarely in the past two years, was selected by the clerk of courts today. They were filed three weeks ago. No return of service has been made. Under the law divorce proceedings need not be made public until the case is placed on the docket for trial.

Mrs. French would not discuss the matter. Mr. French, who has been here rarely in the past two years, was said to be in Tusculoo. He is a brother of Mrs. Etta French Vanderbilt. The Frenches have two daughters, Mrs. Samuel Wingstaff and Mrs. Jack Geraghty, and two sons, Amos Tuck French, Jr., and Stuyvesant Leroy French.

Reid, former solicitor of the Stone Mountain circuit, who succeeds Judge Hill on the bench; and George M. Hester, who was appointed solicitor of the Stone Mountain circuit. They received their commissions at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the governor's office.

TURKEY ENGAGES GERMAN TO REORGANIZE ARMY

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 1.—The Turkish government today completed arrangements for the employment of a German military mission headed by one of the younger German generals, for the reorganization of the Ottoman army. Greater powers are to be given the instructors than were given to Field Marshal Kolmar von der Goltz, who had charge of the training of the Turkish army for several years. It is hoped this will result in the elimination of politics from the army and contribute to the stability of the government.

STATE OF ALABAMA SUES ATLANTIC COAST LINE

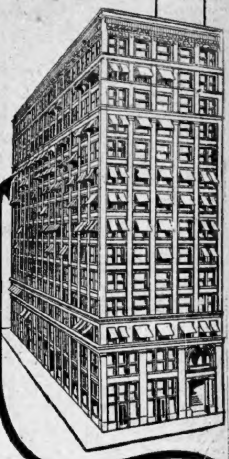

(By Associated Press.) MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 1.—Suits were entered late this afternoon by the state against the Atlantic Coast Line railway seeking to cut that system of a corporation doing business in Alabama for alleged non-payment of franchise tax for 1911-12-13. It is alleged the company has outstanding capital in excess of $10,000,000 and that its property in Alabama is taxed at approximately $1,000,000, tax on which has not been paid. It is stated that if this suit is successful it is merely a forerunner of similar suits against other railroads in the state.

To the 11th Floor of the Empire Building Where You Will Find

Bottenfield

In New and More Spacious Offices Covering Almost the Entire Floor

Growth of Business

Has forced us to move to new and larger quarters, but we are not going to get far from base.

With November 1 we go simply from the 10th to the 11th floor of the Empire Building, where we will occupy fourteen offices, instead of five—just three times the space. But, as Kipling would put it—

"That's another story."

And here it is: We have handled successfully fourteen residence subdivisions in and adjacent to Atlanta.

We have sold to satisfied purchasers approximately 1,000 home sites in the space of little more than one year.

We have made money for every customer whose purchase we have rehandled.

We have a live and active selling organization of 50, and we must have room for them as well as for our customers. We must have more room both for our city and subdivision sales departments.

We are going to add a new department at once—that of home building on our subdivisions, and, later, insurance and loans, for—

We propose to have and to lend a hand ourselves in the improvement and development of the subdivisions we have successfully placed on the market.

Come and see us.

The Healey Building, Atlanta's Newest and Largest Business Edifice, to Use Central Station Electric Current for Lights and Power

MORGAN & DILLON, Architects.

THE HEALEY BUILDING, Corner Walton and Forsyth Streets

The installation of CENTRAL STATION ELECTRIC SERVICE in the Healey Building, that magnificent new business edifice now nearing completion at the corner of Walton and Forsyth streets, is still another unquestionable proof of the ECONOMY and the EFFICIENCY of this method of furnishing light and power for business enterprises.

The president of the Healey Real Estate and Improvement Company, Mr. W. T. Healey, together with the architects of the building, Messrs. Morgan and Dillon, carefully considered every other method of obtaining light and power for the big structure before they decided upon CENTRAL STATION ELECTRIC SERVICE of the Georgia Railway & Power Company. They compared the estimates made by those who were desirous of installing a private plant in the building with the estimates furnished on the service by this company, and they did not hesitate in giving their decision in favor of our service. In this decision they were influenced by no other reasons than the ECONOMY and the EFFICIENCY of this service as compared with other methods.

THE PRICES NAMED IN THE CONTRACT FOR THIS SERVICE ARE THE STANDARD PRICES WHICH ANY OTHER ENTERPRISE OF THIS CHARACTER AND SIZE MAY OBTAIN.
THE CLAIM OF THIS COMPANY, THAT ITS SERVICE FOR LIGHT AND POWER IS THE MOST ECONOMICAL AND THE MOST EFFICIENT OBTAINABLE IN THIS TERRITORY, HAS NOT BEEN AND CANNOT BE SUCCESSFULLY CONTROVERTED. POULTRY, PIGEONS AND LIVE STOCK

The Georgia State Fair

PRIZE-WINNERS in the big poultry at the Georgia state fair were announced Thursday morning and premium tags have soon placed on many of the coops, showing the best birds.

Loring Brown, judge of poultry, declares that those entered this year are as good as can be found anywhere and show many new poultry factors who are taking an interest in the state fair at Macon.

Several hundred birds were disqualified for the show for various reasons, the main one being that they arrived too late. The county fairs being held in many counties of the state made it impossible for the prospective exhibitors to get their birds from the county fairs in time to take part in the state fair at Macon.

Following are the prize-winners, as announced Thursday: S. C. WHITE LEGHORNS. George B. Farris, Grand Rapids, Mich.—First, second and third cock; first, second and third pullet.

Superior Poultry Farm, Brooks, Ga.—Fifth hen. W. C. Floyd, Cochen—Third cock. H. T. Conner, Macon—Third cockerel and third pullet.

TOULOUSE. Mrs. D. H. Middlebrooks, Yatesville—First pen. S. C. BROWN LEGHORNS. T. W. Higdon, Macon—First, second, third and fourth hen and first pullet.

TOULOUSE. Mrs. D. H. Middlebrooks, Yatesville—Second cock, second pen and fourth hen. H. P. Russell, Milldeedville—Third cock, fourth and fifth cockerel, second, third and fourth pullet.

TOULOUSE. E. J. Henry, Hawkinsville—Fourth cock, fifth hen and fourth pen. W. E. Thompson, Atlanta—First hen; first pullet, first cockerel and first pen.

WHITE PLYMOUTH ROCKS. Mr. F. H. Nalls, Macon—First, third and fourth hen; first cock. P. A. Baby, Macon—Second cock and second hen.

WHITE PLYMOUTH ROCKS. Mrs. D. H. Middlebrooks, Yatesville—First pen. O. H. Hooper, Macon—Fifth pullet and third pen.

WHITE PLYMOUTH ROCKS. J. H. Wendley, Tampa, Fla.—First, second and third cock; first, second and third pullet.

Announcement WE HAVE recently acquired the exclusive agency in this territory for The Efficiency Construction Company, and we are now prepared to FINANCE, PLAN AND CONSTRUCT FACTORY BUILDINGS, OFFICE BUILDINGS, BUSINESS BUILDINGS, HOTEL BUILDINGS.

WE HAVE building sites in all sections; are prepared to furnish plans, estimates, finance in any amount, and construct your building.

OUR SPECIALTY—Factories and Business property.

CENTRAL CORNER

NO BETTER INVESTMENT can be made than to buy a centrally located corner in Atlanta. You not only get substantial rentals from such properties, but you can always absolutely count on a rapid increase in values. Go out in the market, if you please, and see how many central corners you will find for sale in Atlanta, and after you have completed your search, the answer will be the same as of all others who have looked for such properties: "I found one or two but the prices were prohibitive."

WITH US THIS IS NOT THE CASE. We can sell a corner in the very heart of Atlanta, right at the junction of three of the main business arteries, that rents for $7,000 per year, that we can sell for $110,000, on terms of $25,000 cash and $10,000 per year, with 6 per cent. This corner has a frontage of 60 feet, and the ground value alone should not be less than $2,000 per front foot, considering its central and advantageous location.

SEE US AT ONCE ABOUT THIS. GET RID OF SOME BONDS, IF NECESSARY, TO SECURE IT.

New York Stock Market Narrow, Dull and Highly Professional

With Holiday in London and One at Home Tuesday, There Was Little Prospect of Much Business Before Last of Next Week

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—All signs pointed to a dull stock market today and traders accordingly were not dissatisfied by the complete stagnation of the session. With only one day in London today and one in the home market tomorrow, there was little prospect of much business before the middle of next week. At the opening there was a slight easing of the firm of the London Canadian Pacific and a point. London leaders took advantage of reactions to return their purchases and buying of this nature was ineffective in raising prices. A movement was wider, points yesterday broke 3 more to 1, new lows were subsequently realized. American financial shares were again prominent. The common stock and preferred of the preferred to 9 points. American Telephone and Telegraph, Pennsylvania Septembers statement was unfavorable. The Western Pennsylvania stock showed a decrease in price of $25,000 and the western lines of $22,000.

HEMPHILL PROPERTY

This spot surrounded by the keenest type of commercialism on all sides. Five hundred business places and enterprises beyond this property. The whole city of Atlanta back toward the center is a seething, growing, pushing creased from 1903 to 1913 from $415,000.00 plus to $1,328,000.00, an increase of 219 per cent.

The State of Georgia will, in the next twenty years, have an increase in population of two million people. Our to this that property which will face on the railroad, and you have a double valuation, and a double opportunity to begin with.

LUCKIE STREET, well, why expatiate, it has grown in value from

The property on the railroad frontage has been divided into four warehouse properties, separated by partitions and doors on the railroad side, with platform for unloading at the car door, with exits on the alley side for unloading into wagons, the entrance of the alley being ten feet wide and widens into a space of 25 feet across the entire property.

The property on Marietta street has been divided into seven store properties. Some of them will admit warehouses extending from the railroad through the entire property to Marietta street.

This is one of the most logical subdivisions of railroad property and retail property combined that there is in all of Atlanta.

History

The writer said to Dr. J. W. Mason:

"Doctor, how long have you been acquainted with the Hemphill property?"

Doctor replied: "For forty years, and that property has, all during that time been a business center, and at no time have I seen the property vacant."

To a buyer, this is a personal knowledge that accentuates the worth of this property and assures the investor of a steadfast income.

city, whose comparison is unknown in the entire South if in the United States.

This property facing on a network of railroad tracks with every facility for shipping, packing and transferring, fronting on two car lines, over which run the interurban cars to Marietta, subdivided with alleys and driveways to make it the most acceptable warehouse property in the city with retail fronts. Stop, look and listen. With the tremendous growing businesses of Atlanta, how long will it be till values here will go skyward with a bound?

To give you an idea of the growth of commercialism in the past ten years, we find that the bank clearings in 1902 were $131,200,457.25. In 1912 the figures were so tremendous that it was beyond the conception of any human being--$691,941,255.20--an increase in ten years of $560,000,000.00 plus--an increase of 427 per cent. and Atlanta has just begun to grow.

The postoffice receipts have in-farm lands alone can accommodate this tremendous number of people. Atlanta is the product of the State of Georgia and will, by the natural growth, get 20 per cent. of this increase, which is the proper ratio for the central city of a community like that because of the necessity for banking, clearing, shipping and wholesaling, and for the furnishing of every need of mankind.

Atlanta has the necessary railroad facilities, being the railroad center, not only of the State, but of the entire Southeast, and will grow as the section grows. It will always be the center, not only commercialism, but music, art, education, etc. It will be the town that the rich country merchant and planter will retire in, and Atlanta will grow in wealth and will grow in demands for investments. Atlanta today is probably the richest Southern City in the entire Southeast.

All these things will enhance every inch of Marietta Street frontage. Add Tabernacle Place to Peachtree at the ratio from $25.00 to $100.00 per front foot to $300.00 to $5,000.00 per front foot. Luckie Street feeds directly to the Hemphill property. Walton Street which finishes exactly in front of this property is more than two-thirds built up now with skyscrapers.

Spring Street unimproved means further enhancement in this section. From the Hemphill Property back to Peachtree is destined to be Central property from this time on. To talk of the growth of Atlanta is only to be reminded of the fact that the Land Lot that this property is in not much more than a lifetime ago sold for $200. This Land Lot today includes so many millions in Atlanta's choicest Central skyscraper development, that it is impossible to compute it.

The live, keen far seeing investor of today will readily assure you that this is one of the most advantageous buys having been put upon the market in years; and it would not now be for sale except that there must be a division of the property for the heirs, and will be sold at the time and date above mentioned. Your bid will be accepted and you have the same chance that any other investor will have, and this is the only way it can be sold as prescribed by law.

First Soccer Game of Year

Lithonia Stonecutters Defeated Atlanta Team by Score of 8 to 1, Saturday

The first real soccer game of the season was staged Saturday afternoon at Princeton park between the Atlanta and the Lithonia teams of the newly formed Georgia State League.

The game was not a regular league game and was of a friendly nature, which was well for the Atlanta club as the Stonecutters were far and away the better team both as to fitness and as to style of play.

The game was witnessed by quite a goodly number of interested spectators and many of the fair sex were on hand as well as a number of the public school boys and girls in their own soccer uniforms.

GREAT SOUTHERN AUTOMOBILE SHOW ATLANTA, GA. November 8 to 15 FIRST SHOWING OF 1914 MODELS

MUSIC BY SOUSA'S BAND Concerts afternoon and evening beginning Tuesday, Nov. 11 ADMISSION 50 CENTS

THE NEW MODELS

For 1914 Will Be Exhibited at The Great Southern Automobile Show--
November 8th to 15th. Meet Us There.

ANOTHER six days and the great Southern Automobile Show will have opened. Already every show room in the city is filled with new 1914 models, and interest in the big event that will open on the 8th is at fever heat.

Atlanta is the automobile center of the South. In no other Southern city is there such a row of stately automobile sales and show rooms, or such a bunch of automobile dealers. The automobile business of the South revolves around Atlanta; Atlanta is the Southern distributing point for all the important automobile manufacturers.

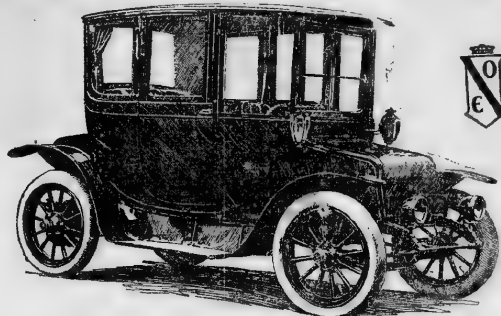

Hundreds of dealers from all over the Southern States will be here for the big show, and thousands of enthusiastic motorists will also be here. It will be a great thing for Atlanta—a great thing for the South. There is not a new model of any of the standard make motor cars, or electrics, but that will be shown during the week. They will all be on display, and, taken as a whole, the exposition will reflect credit on all who are in any way connected with it.

In addition to showing all the new models for 1914, the automobile dealers of Atlanta have gone to an expense of $7,000 to bring Sousa and his celebrated band to Atlanta. The great musician and his many men are coming for the express purpose of rendering the concerts at the Automobile Show, after which he will return to New York. The enterprise of the local dealers, in assuming such an obligation just to give the people of Atlanta and the South this treat, is certainly commendable, and should merit for the show the undivided support of all Atlanta automobile and music lovers.

Don't miss coming to see the new models--- they are all here, and you will miss an exposition worth while should you fail to come.

FIVE NEW MODELS OF THE 1914 OHIO ELECTRIC WILL BE ON DISPLAY AT THE AUTOMOBILE SHOW NEXT WEEK

The advent of the new 1914 models of the OHIO ELECTRIC into Atlanta's automobile circles is an important one. We have five new models of this popular electric and they will be on display at the Great Southern Automobile Show here next week.

The electric has won for itself a secure place in the hearts and affections of the American people—it is primarily the city car. The OHIO ELECTRIC is the ideal electric—it is the car with every feature that could possibly appeal to you, and at the same time not a single drawback.

The Ohio Electric introduced the double drive and the magnetic control—we hold patents on both ideas. And these two features, in connection with the magnetic brake, afford a driving comfort and an ease of operation that no other car has ever approached.

And it is these features that specially appeal to ladies. The car itself is, after all, its own best argument. We shall be glad to arrange a demonstration at your convenience—preferably after you have seen other cars so that you may make comparisons.

We want you to see the five new models of the OHIO that will be on display at the Automobile Show from the 8th to the 15th. Once you see them, you will recognize in each one the perfect car of its type.

These two cars are the last word in perfect automobile construction

All of the 1914 models have sufficient power. The experimental cars have been tested in such a way as to fully convince the engineering and sales organizations that they are equal to every emergency. All of the cars were taken on long eastern trips, over mountainous country, just to prove their hill-climbing ability. Trips were made from Pontiac, Mich., as far south as Wheeling, West Virginia, and as far east as Pittsburgh. Four days were spent on the hills around the city. All this was done for the purpose of proving beyond any doubt as to sufficient power of the various models.

Oakland-Cabriolet

The Cabriolet (this means a diminutive cab), which will be mounted on the Model 36 chassis. This is a convertible body and may be used either in summer or winter. The body has been so designed as to allow the windows to fold down against the doors, and the top tilts back, making the body an open one. And for winter use this is closed so that it resembles a coupe, and may be used as such.

This is, of course, inside drive, and will have seating capacity for three passengers. It is finished in a rich blue. The upholstery will be optional and you may place your orders for gray whipcord, tan leather or shiny leather.

Every Oakland is a tried, tested, finished product. Don't put your money into a car until you have made a careful study of the new Oakland. We have some territory open in the States of North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida, Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee, and can make automobile dealers an attractive proposition.

Geo. W. Hanson, Pres.

Oakland Motor Sales Co.

Oakland-Sedan

On the model 43 chassis there will be mounted a four-passenger Sedan, inside drive pattern. The body will be finished in blue and the upholstery will be optional, whipcord or morroco leather.

$1550 You wanted a really high-grade car at a moderate price. Jeffery has built it!

You know that four or five hundred dollars will buy an automobile, but you aren't willing to sacrifice entirely, looks and comfort. You know that twice as much money will buy an automobile with quite a little in looks, comfort, power and service under good road conditions.

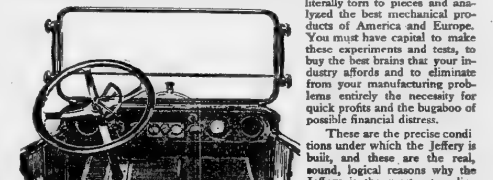

THE THOMAS B. JEFFERY COMPANY has always been recognized as representing the most solid, conservative, yet successful spirit of the automobile industry. In bicycle days the Rambler was the standard by which others were measured.

Now, this marvelous manufacturing organization, with its $5,500,000 in assets, with the highest credit in the industry and a factory equipped with $3,000,000 worth of the latest machinery, its engineering and designing departments thoroughly familiar with the latest and best designs of this country and Europe, offers to the public a perfect motor car, and is proud to mount upon it the name-plate "Jeffery."

There are other cars on the market at about $1,500, but even hasty comparison of the specifications will indicate that from now on at least, motor cars cannot be "classed" by price.

With all the capital in the world, and with an honest desire to build a perfect motor car surpassing all existing values, you could not go into the automobile business tomorrow and give your buyers real value.

Then, you must build the car and its parts in your own plant and build them better and more economically than outsiders could.

Jeffery Dash and Controls credited this saving to "cost account" rather than retain it as added profit.

how quietly and how easily it handles. We have accomplished that which all motor car designers have either overlooked or striven for in vain—a light car without the sacrifice of strength, sturdiness, power or comfort.

The Jeffery high speed motor develops 40 H. P. at 2200 revolutions. Its flexibility is nothing short of marvelous. It drives this car 40 miles per hour on second speed.

The electric starting and lighting system is the U. S. L. Our engineers made a most exhaustive examination of all systems before selecting this.

The transmission shafts are of vanadium steel hung in five imported annular bearings. The use of vanadium steel and imported ball bearings must appeal to even the uninitiated as practices usually associated only with very high priced cars.

The wheel base of 116 inches gives a compact car and yet retains the comfortable lines of the body and short turning space—42 feet.

The equipment includes top of the finest material, rain-visor windshield, Stewart-Warner speedometer, ammeter, extra demountable rim with carrier, electrically lighted dash, Klaxon horn, Solar electric lamps with dimmer, and complete tool equipment.

The car is built in five body styles: Five passenger touring, one two passenger roadster, $1,550; two passenger Coupelet, enclosed, inside drive, $1,950; four passenger Sedan, enclosed, inside drive, $2,350; five passenger limousine, $3,000.

Successful dealers want to tie up with a financially strong and successful organization. Furthermore, such a high grade car, built in such a plant and of such materials has never before been offered anywhere near this price.

But to build such a car to sell at a moderate price—that's another thing. It can be done only by a big, successful concern with plenty of money, long years of experience in buying materials and machinery, organized to avoid all waste...

Dahler Will Not Be Back With Brooklyn. Next Season Will Show Whether Frank Chance Is Worth $25,000 To Jump World Tour Stars Are Expected After Western Trip

Brooklyn Club, Which Showed Such a Sensational Spurt During Past Season, Will Have a New Manager, Says Gossip Among Fans Who Still Linger Around Ebbetts Field. Owners Are Divided Over Leader for Dodgers, but Dope Favors First Baseman Jake Daubert for Bad Bill's Successor—Fans Sore at Sixth Place Finish

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Bill Dahler is such a manager as the Brooklynians according to the gossip who still hover about Ebbetts field. Whether Dahler will be succeeded by First Baseman Jake Daubert or Harry Hirth, leader of the champion New Yorks, is a question that has answered and there is reason to believe that this season was based upon good judgment. The Brooklyn club is taking away Aitchison, Collins and McGraw from the New Yorks. A season passed with ill feeling in the Jersey meadows, where the fans now await the management of Manager Smith.

Frank Chance has been in the American league one season and to all appearances hasn't accomplished much, but appearances are sometimes as deceptive as an Ed Walsh fastball. What Chance has done will be shown in 1914. This year he was handicapped by falling back to a mid-level of play and the failure of men from whom he had a right to expect much.

Gossip Among Ball Players Says Mathewson, Meyers, Speaker and Others Will Desert the Trip at Vancouver and Leave McGraw and Callahan Hard Pushed for Athletes When They Sail in January—Pastimers Noted for Their Fear of Long Sea Trips, and Besides, They Do Not Like the Idea of Playing for Long Months for Nothing

According to gossip among ball players left, McGraw and Jimmy Callahan are going to desert the trip at Vancouver. When they sail from Vancouver for Japan, McGraw and Callahan are expected to go along and help draw some money in the States. The trip is expected to last three months and the players are expected to quit at Vancouver, says Mathewson, Meyers, Speaker and Crawford. If they do not desert, they will have less than thirteen players to go around the world, and the Whites are expected to be a badly off unless new men are recruited.

Neither will Uncle Sam endorse Huerta's note.

The ultimate consumer is also waiting for his Christmas present.

Huerta is not alone in finding it hard to meet his debts on the first of the month.

The Indiana statesman who opposed the congressional gift to Miss Wilson will never suffer from an excess of sentiment.

Two Great Enterprises For Atlanta's Upbuilding.

Two enterprises of far-reaching importance to Atlanta are now being considered—a plaza and a public market. Both these improvements are essential to the city's welfare, both should be undertaken and pressed vigorously to completion.

The plaza committee, on each of which Council and the Chamber of Commerce are jointly represented, have been appointed to devise definite plans for these projects. The market committee is dealing with an economic problem that concerns Atlanta alone, the plaza committee with a civic problem in which the State is vitally interested.

It is a question, to be sure, whether the railroads will permit the city to use the space above their property, but that can soon be determined. If they will not, then no time should be lost in finding some other suitable site.

This is a problem that will grow more complex and burdensome the longer it is delayed. Ten years ago a public market could have been established in Atlanta with little difficulty or expense.

Ten years hence it will be well-nigh impossible to secure anything like a central location within reach of the city's people.

The Council and Chamber of Commerce committee has an inspiring opportunity to serve the public and to set forward Atlanta's prosperity and renown.

The committee may depend upon the people's hearty support for any well-considered plan. It formulates, and each of its members by presenting this great enterprise to completion will earn for himself an enduring place on the roll of the city's master builders.

And yet some of us will feel hurt when the income tax collector passes us by.

So far as is known, President Wilson is offering no special favors to the Princeton football team.

A Million a Day for Roads.

A million dollars a day is spent in the United States for the improvement and extension of highways. That fund, if competently applied, would produce in the course of a few decades a nation-wide system of excellent roads; but if ignorantly or carelessly employed, as is too often the case, it will yield a scant return to the people who contribute it.

It is in this connection that the importance of State Highway commissions becomes manifest. Every State should maintain some central agency through which the various counties can secure expert aid and advice in working out their particular road problems.

It is gratifying to know that the Prison Commission of Georgia has taken a step in this direction by providing for the employment of a State road supervisor whose counsel and help will be at disposal of each county during a certain number of days each year.

Gen. Ferris's Disas says he will not return to Mexico, just as if any engraved invitation had been sent to him.

President Wilson's attitude is that the big interests must employ government bill collectors in those countries south of us.

Those timid folk who sometimes fear Uncle Sam is whipping too hotly up the John Bull. Government should take a look at John Bull. Government should take a look at John Bull.

The need and value of a public market are, indeed, so obvious that they should require no explanation. The main question for Atlanta now to determine is where a market can be most advantageously placed.

This plan is more practical, we believe, than that of directly connecting the market enterprise with the main plaza enterprise.

The Liberal Government proposes to bring this waste and idle land within "the wealth producing sphere" and also to assure tenants fair treatment.

It is a peculiarly interesting fact that both the great political parties of England recognize the need and justice of such reform.

The Liberal Ministry, while not overlooking this phase of the scheme, proposes to go further and provide thoroughgoing supervision of rents and tenancy.

OSCAR UNDERWOOD By Savoyard

Personally I am sorry that Henry Clayton did not succeed to the vacant seat in the senate from Alabama. He has the temperament for the place and would grace it.

But he would be a brilliant man, as well as an able one. Mr. Underwood, however, is a man of a different type.

As for that, where will you get a finer pedigree than Oscar Underwood's? He is the grandson of Joseph H. Underwood, a near-neighbor of George Rogers Clark, and one of the most illustrious of the citizenship of Kentucky.

This here Oscar Underwood is not as handsome a man as his granddaddy, but he is strikingly brave. He was in the front ranks of the Union army.

It is a peculiarly interesting fact that both the great political parties of England recognize the need and justice of such reform.

RURAL CREDITS

THE GERMAN LAND MORTGAGE BANK B. FREDERIC C. HASKIN

Co-operative credit is a product of a healthy and progressive community. It is also the product of individual initiative.

We must go back to the Seven Year War in Germany to the beginning of the present system of co-operative credit.

At this juncture there came upon the scene a Berlin business man, Herr F. C. Haskin, who had the eye for the great occasion.

The experiment worked like a charm. Soon the co-operative credit system in Germany had spread to the unlimited field it extended.

The principle behind the land mortgage bank, however, is the same as that which underlies the currency system.

Under the German system, when one buys a land mortgage, he is not buying a piece of property.

Under our system the matter of mortgage loans is a personal one. Each lender must know the personal responsibility of the borrower.

Originally, the landshafter did not give cash to a member in exchange for his mortgage.

Under the German system, when one buys a land mortgage, he is not buying a piece of property.

This revolutionized the money lending business, and it revolutionized the credit system.

The present day landshafter are simply associates of borrowers, who supply themselves with credit at the lowest possible terms.

It was very early in the '80's that T. H. S. Scott, whose "Anthony Trollope, His Work, Associates and Original Character" has been a best seller.

Neither will Uncle Sam endorse Huerta's note.

The ultimate consumer is also waiting for his Christmas present.

Huerta is not alone in finding it hard to meet his debts on the first of the month.

The Indiana statesman who opposed the congressional gift to Miss Wilson will never suffer from an excess of sentiment.

Two Great Enterprises For Atlanta's Upbuilding.

Two enterprises of far-reaching importance to Atlanta are now being considered—a plaza and a public market. Both these improvements are essential to the city's welfare, both should be undertaken and pressed vigorously to completion.

The plaza committee, on each of which Council and the Chamber of Commerce are jointly represented, have been appointed to devise definite plans for these projects. The market committee is dealing with an economic problem that concerns Atlanta alone, the plaza committee with a civic problem in which the State is vitally interested.

This improvement would benefit the State no less than Atlanta. That portion of the Western and Atlantic property east of the Forsyth street bridge is not essential to the railroad's operation and adds nothing to the value of the road's lease.

The Legislative Commission which was created at the last session of the General Assembly to formulate plans for the future of the State's railroad will do well to give generous consideration to this particular phase of its subject.

Furthermore, the State should not inflict upon its capital city the unnecessary discomfort and injury of a railroad yard smoking and shrieking in the business center. Atlanta's interests and those of the commonwealth are interdependent.

A Million a Day for Roads. A million dollars a day is spent in the United States for the improvement and extension of highways. That fund, if competently applied, would produce in the course of a few decades a nation-wide system of excellent roads; but if ignorantly or carelessly employed, as is too often the case, it will yield a scant return to the people who contribute it.

It is in this connection that the importance of State Highway commissions becomes manifest. Every State should maintain some central agency through which the various counties can secure expert aid and advice in working out their particular road problems.

It is gratifying to know that the Prison Commission of Georgia has taken a step in this direction by providing for the employment of a State road supervisor whose counsel and help will be at disposal of each county during a certain number of days each year.

necessarily cost more than when they are grown near the source of demand and sold directly to the consumer. In Des Moines, Iowa, an average reduction of more than thirty-five per cent was effected in the price of foodstuffs within a few weeks after a central market had been established.

The need and value of a public market are, indeed, so obvious that they should require no explanation. The main question for Atlanta now to determine is where a market can be most advantageously placed. The Journal has previously suggested that an excellent location may be found in that part of the railroad property which lies beyond the Union station between Central avenue and the Washington street viaduct.

This plan is more practical, we believe, than that of directly connecting the market enterprise with the main plaza enterprise. In the latter case, the city would have to wait on Legislative uncertainties and delays before it could move a step in establishing a market. But it could soon be ascertained whether the railroads would agree to the construction of a market under the present control of the railroads.

This location, if available, would be almost an ideal site for a public market. It would be accessible from all neighborhoods and from every section of Atlanta's rural territory. It would afford ample market space without disturbing any business center and without encroaching upon land needed for other purposes.

It is a question, to be sure, whether the railroads will permit the city to use the space above their property, but that can soon be determined. If they will not, then no time should be lost in finding some other suitable site.

This is a problem that will grow more complex and burdensome the longer it is delayed. Ten years ago a public market could have been established in Atlanta with little difficulty or expense.

Ten years hence it will be well-nigh impossible to secure anything like a central location within reach of the city's people.

It will never be easier to establish a market but, if we neglect to do so now, the disadvantages and hardships which the lack of such an institution entails will become steadily more onerous.

The Council and Chamber of Commerce committee has an inspiring opportunity to serve the public and to set forward Atlanta's prosperity and renown.

The committee may depend upon the people's hearty support for any well-considered plan. It formulates, and each of its members by presenting this great enterprise to completion will earn for himself an enduring place on the roll of the city's master builders.

And yet some of us will feel hurt when the income tax collector passes us by. So far as is known, President Wilson is offering no special favors to the Princeton football team.

Gen. Porfirio's Disas says he will not return to Mexico, just as if any engraved invitation had been sent to him. Huerta is trying hard not to join that down-and-out club composed of Castro, Aguinaldo and ex-king Manuel.

Progressive England.

Those timid folk who sometimes fear Uncle Sam is whipping too hotly up the John Bull. Government should take a look at John Bull. Government should take a look at John Bull. Government should take a look at John Bull.

This last reform will probably mean more for English progress and security than any other one measure the Liberal Government has put into effect. Some fourteen million acres of England's soil are now locked hard and fast in a system that virtually amounts to feudalism.

The Liberal Government proposes to bring this waste and idle land within "the wealth producing sphere" and also to assure tenants fair treatment, the object being to restore that free, sturdy yeomanry which in days of old was the country's strength and pride.

It is a peculiarly interesting fact that both the great political parties of England recognize the need and justice of such reform. As regards the principle involved, they agree; it is chiefly on the question of means and method that they differ.

The Liberal party, while not overlooking this phase of the scheme, proposes to go further and provide thoroughgoing supervision of rents and tenure. A new administrative department, headed by a Minister of Lands, is proposed.

These who know what the conduct of greedy landowners has been will understand how heartily they resent these provisions. For the agricultural laborer, there are at last to be decent homes, with at least land enough attached to each cottage to provide the family with vegetables.

There is nothing new under the sun, and Colonel Roosevelt, touring South America, said that character was better than more intellect.

Now that Christmas is no longer celebrated with violence, and the Fourth of July is safer every year, comes Halloween with a list of fatalities.

One of the burdens of men in public life is the correspondence that is thrust upon them by interested, devoted or cranky admirers.

RURAL CREDITS IX—THE GERMAN LAND MORTGAGE BANK

B. FREDERIC C. HASKIN.

Co-operative credit is a product of a healthy and progressive society. It is the result of the reference to personal liability. It is also the product of the rich landholders upon whom it was based.

We must go back to the Seven Year War in Germany to the beginning of the present system of co-operative credit. That war hit the German people a terrific blow, leaving them land-poor in the most progressive degree.

The principle behind the land mortgage bank, however, is the same as that which underlies the currency system. The government issues its first land mortgage bank notes.

Under the German system, when one buys a land mortgage bank note, he is buying a share in a railroad bond. Behind it lies a mass of securities.

Originally, the landholders did not give cash to a lender in exchange for his mortgage. It gave him, instead, a bond containing a promise to pay both the principal and interest.

This revolutionized the money lending business, and it is the result of the reference to personal liability.

The tendency in the landholders of Germany today is to place special borrowing facilities in the hands of the small borrower.

The result of the operation of the co-operative land mortgage banks has brought into existence a large number of non-co-operative banks of this sort.

Compared with our American system, where the land mortgage banks are the most difficult of all securities to handle, where the term of repayment is usually as long as that of other classes of securities, and where the farmer finds himself paying the highest rates of interest.

THEATRE

Mabel and Edith Taliaferro in "Young Wisdom" at Atlanta.
Dixon Play at Atlanta Last of Week

With the Lyric and Grand theaters with the week, Atlanta will yet have an opportunity to see plenty of good stuff in the two plays that will give Atlanta and the surrounding territory a good show for the week.

The Taliaferro sisters, Mabel and Edith, who are well known here both as former valetians and reputation, are back at the Lyric with a new play by Frank Sheridan in "Young Wisdom," especially for him by Richard Harding Davis. It is entitled "Blackmail." The other acts are expected to be good.

The Bijou announces the new Jewel stock company in a melodrama, "A Girl of the Streets."

With no play booked for this week, the Lyric presents "Truxton King" for next week, taken from the book by George Barr McCutcheon.

Monday Tuesday and Wednesday will have as her guests Mabel and Edith Taliaferro in the beautiful southern comedy bearing the title of "Young Wisdom." This play has been extremely successful in the east, and the engagement of the sisters Taliaferro is sure to be a big event at the Atlanta theater.

The play is being directed from the big eastern cities and has the New York stamp.

Baltimore last week and made a wonderfully fine impression. The conservative Baltimore American raved over the play and its stars. It said: "It has been a long time since a better pleased audience left a Baltimore theater than that which left the Lyric last night after the performance of 'Young Wisdom.' It is seldom that a local drama is so well received as this one, especially in the elements of theater-goers from gallery to orchestra and box seats as in the charming play from the pen of Richard Davis. Both the stars and the play made an unqualified hit."

"Fluctuating back beyond the memory of the present play-goers one falls to find a dramatic novelty years of patient listening consequent upon the appearance of these two popular young stars of the day in a play which gives such an opportunity to utilize the remarkable talent which both have shown so impressively in these parts."

Miss Mabel Taliaferro was last seen here in "Polly of the Circus," in which she scored such a great triumph. Miss Edith has recently returned from Europe where she was seen as star in "The Sign of the Cross." They are surrounded by a highly capable company.

DIXON PLAY COMING.
Thomas Dixon, whose new play, "The Leopard's Spots," dramatized from his famous novel, will be seen here on Thursday, Friday and Saturday with a highly capable company.

"The Leopard's Spots" is the fruit of more than twenty years of patient thought and study on the relations of the white and black races in America. It is a passionate defense of a patient, quiet and long suffering people who have remained silent under misrepresentation and slander. It has been written by authors who are about the reconstruction era that the tragic events of the book almost beyond belief, and is a historical revelation as well as a romance.

"LITTLE WOMEN"
In an interview to the Soranet Times, Dr. Anderson says that the showings made by "Little Women" was most gratifying, as he regards the story as one of the most wholesome in American literature. The fact that children as well as grown-ups of three generations have been enthralled by Miss Alcott's little simple story of New England home life affords striking proof, says the doctor, that a good book like Tansy's book goes on forever.

"Little Women" still enjoys tremendous popularity in the larger cities.

Calendar for the Week

ATLANTA—Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Mabel and Edith Taliaferro in "Young Wisdom."
ATLANTA—Thursday, Friday and Saturday, "The Leopard's Spots."
LYRIC—Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, "A Girl of the Streets."
BIJOU—Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, "The Leopard's Spots."

MABEL AND EDITH TALIAFERRO in "YOUNG WISDOM" at the ATLANTA

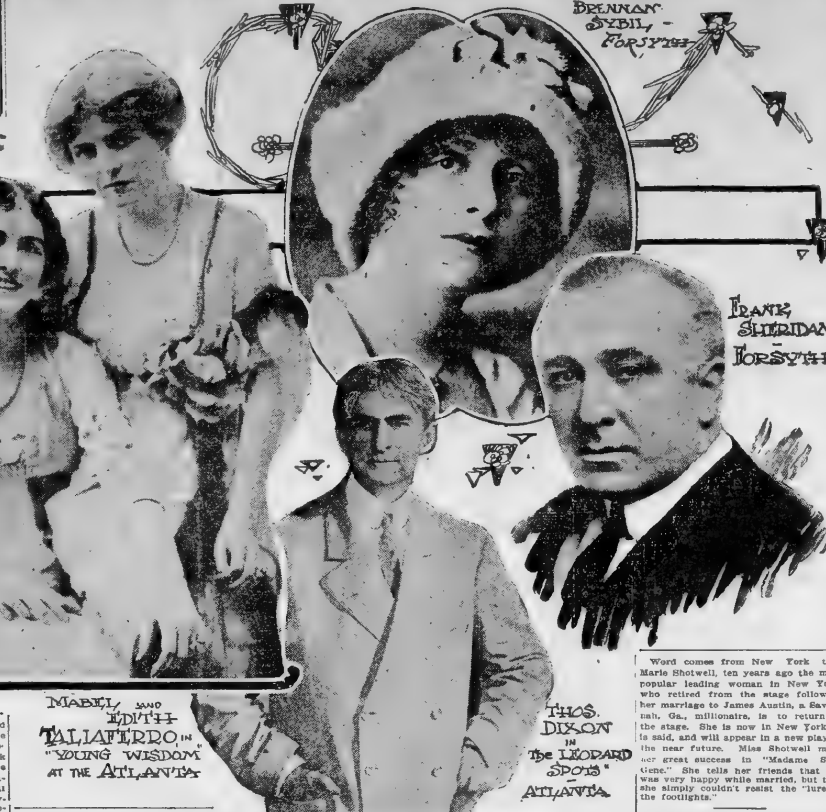

was shown by the reception accorded Marian DeForests dramatization of the piece, which William A. Brady produced at the Playhouse in New York last season. The play was one of the biggest successes of the theatrical season, being kept at the Playhouse all winter to satisfy the demand of playgoers who had been surprised with so-called "problem" plays and torrid musical shows.

Mr. Brady will present "Little Women" at the Atlanta November 12, 14 and 15, with the complete Playhouse production and a cast of representative players.

Gaby Deslys, who recently began her London season at the Palace, has written enthusiastically to her American manager of her reception by the British public. When Gaby played at the Palace last summer, a storm of protest was raised over the bed room scene which she had used in her act. The Paris French actress left London in a huff, but she now seems to be appeased and declares that the English people are the greatest in the world, excepting of course, her own countrymen and Americans. Before retiring for American, she and Mr. Harry, who is dating with her, will have a rest at their London home.

Gaby's tour will open in Philadelphia the latter part of November, and she will travel in style to California, coming back to New York in February to appear in a new production at the Winter Garden.

Edith Barrymore will make her first New York appearance in a full evening, in "The Sign of the Cross" in the Lyric, by C. Hadion Chambers, founded upon the novel of the same name.

MABEL AND EDITH TALIAFERRO in "YOUNG WISDOM" at the ATLANTA

ACROSS MAY BE EMPLOYED.
LONDON.—Cyril Maude, the actor, is a popular man, and it is generally thought that he will be the next London actor to receive knighthood. If this honor should be conferred upon him he will be the first of the little band of titled actors who belonged by birth to a family in which titles are not rare and wonderful things. For years his leading woman was his wife, the charming and accomplished actress Winifred Emery. Her charms may now without offense be called matrimony, but Mr. and Mrs. Maude's daughter, Marjorie has made herself a London favorite in impetuous parts. She will accompany her father on his American and Canadian tours.

William Collier begins his annual New York engagement, returning to the Criterion theater and to Charles Frohman's management. In the new farce by Richard Harding Davis, called "Who's Who?" the piece is in three acts—made up of scenes alternately in the west and in the east. Mr. Collier is supported by his family: in the part of Henry Ham, a cowboy maigre but Mr. Collier does what he can toward supporting Mr. Frohman.

The "movie" film which Atlantians saw here not so long ago purporting to depict a realistic representation of Harry Thaw's escape from the Mattawan asylum is creating no small stir in New York city. As shown in Atlanta the film was called "The Escape from the Asylum." It is said that Mittenthal Brothers, of New York, claim that many of its scenes were taken from an old time thriller of theirs, "A Desperate Chance," expelling the adventures of the notorious Hiddle Brothers of Pennsylvania. They are demanding part of the profits from the producers of the asylum escape film.

Laurette Taylor is having an exceptional success in "The Sign of the Cross" in New York city, a production which will be presented to Atlanta this winter Monday night she begins the 436 consecutive week of her engagement at the Court theater.

Harold Bell Wright's works do not go so well dramatized as they do in book form. "The Wings of Barbara Worth" had no phenomenal success in New York. It is reported, and "That Printer of Udell's" is leaving New Orleans for repairs in Chicago.

"Blackmail" Headlines Vaudeville Bill at Forsyth—Lyric and Grand Dark—"Girl of the Streets" at Bijou

Another combination of vaudeville artists will be introduced to local theatergoers at the Forsyth this week; a combination that is being kept the playhouse busy and attracting records up to the standard.

One of the headline features of the week will be Frank Sheridan, the distinguished actor, who has been called the American Cicero. Mr. Sheridan, the lead of other stars and vaudeville, scored the week-end at the Lyric when his raid was made up of the best of other stars and vaudeville. Richard Harding Davis for a season play, it was written and called "Blackmail." It was played and some of the critics declared the war had never done anything better.

A novelty feature will be the first vaudeville appearance of Joe Jannone's original, instead of "Glimpses of the Past" presenting the secret spot of local culture.

James Diamond and Sybil Conway in "Nittygrasses" will be the comedy stars of the bill. There has been much heard about Diamond, he has never been seen in Atlanta and it is said to be flatter than silver of the two comedy acts that have been seen at the Forsyth the past month.

Ray Conlin, a ventriloquist of distinguished success, will make his first appearance in this city. He is a comedy act which has given during its long career enormous interest. It is the four-act comedy entitled "A Girl of the Streets," which the principal role of that of the street walk, will be played by Miss Morris, whose vivacious style of acting and pleasing stage presence has been especially to cleverly play the part. Each of the four acts will be staged with special scenery and elaborate stage effects which will characterize the performance throughout.

The play is one of intense interest. There is something of it every minute, and some excellent comedy is introduced by Edith Black, who appears as Tommy Taters, the post detective, and Earl Hilder, who is the part of Horatio, a wily lawyer. "A Girl of the Streets" will be the part of the week with daily matinees 1:30 and night performances 7:30. Monday and ladies will be admitted free when accompanied by a man holding a valid ticket, except before 6 o'clock.

RAILROADS MAP OUT LITERARY FOR "SEE ATLANTA" SPECIAL

Trip as at Present Planned Will Cover 78 Miles and Will Require More Than Eight Hours to Complete

TOUR WILL LIKELY BE EXTENDED OVER TWO DAYS

If Made in One Day, No Time Would Be Left in Which to Stop and Visit Various Plants Along the Way

Last week saw two steps of importance taken toward completing the plans for the big "Industrial Seeing Atlanta Tour"...

On Wednesday afternoon the terminal agents of the various railroads met with members of the bureau and gave their cordial endorsement to the plan...

The literary as mapped out by the railroad officials contemplates a total distance to be traveled of seventy-eight miles and eight and a quarter hours in which to make it...

"We will not permit of any time for those who go on trip to stop and visit the factories and take being the main object of the tour, it is likely that we will run the excursion on two days so as to give ample time for the inspection of each plant," said W. E. O'Leary...

"Everybody I have talked with is enthusiastic over the project and the trip is assured. It only remains now to work out the details of the plants to be visited and the time to be consumed on each..."

The members of the industrial bureau will hold a meeting in the next three or four days at which a list of the manufacturers to be inspected will be compiled...

The itinerary formulated by the bureau is hardly using advance cards at all. It is my experience that it pays and pays well to send these cards out to every customer you can get a date for and then to be there on that date...

"I like a plain card, a very plain one. I notice that the fancy advance cards, especially the somewhat flippant kind, are often tossed flippantly by the merchant who receives them..."

ON THE ROAD AND IN THE OFFICE WITH ATLANTA'S COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS

Sam Sawyer has had no more mishaps recently in his rounds of the city than in his automobile. Since his mishap with an ice wagon, short time ago he is believed to have been using more care. Though it is said at Montague that he must certainly have been driving slow, if not carefully, to let the ice wagon run into him from behind. He does not admit that he was overtaken by an ice wagon, but that is the story they tell.

George Lunsford continues to do well on his maiden trip which he is making in place of E. S. Harrison for the B. & O. Richards company.

F. H. Jeter is now an Atlantan. He has cracked out the steam here, to be exact, at Monday, which amounts to the same thing. Jeter has moved up town to 1000 N. Alabama, where he made his headquarters. He is now traveling in the territory of the Georgia, Tallahassee and Silver City.

The Georgia, Tallahassee and Silver City. The Silver City traveler made a strong showing in south Georgia and promises to break this year's record in his new territory in 1913.

Bert Fox, with Montague Brothers is here for Sunday, after a successful trip among some of his Georgia customers.

"Travel wait" as W. W. Benson is now becoming generally known for that the Firing Line is responsible for this comparatively little being so general. The big shield Brand shoe man has some fifteen aspirants and more, and he has also long been called "Duke" Walk around the M. C. Kiser company place. How his merchant friends have joined in since he has been so mentioned in these columns.

Joe Wallace, traveler for the H. I. Slinger company, must have a great deal upon the trip in his territory. His house received a number of letters last week asking when he might get back to town to call and declaring that they always looked forward to his visits with pleasure. The interesting fact about some big orders were in store for him.

Between tinkering on that automobile of his and looking after the city trade for the H. I. Slinger company, Joe Brown is a very busy man. It is difficult to tell exactly to which of these two things he devotes most of his attention.

J. Gode Ady was one year old yesterday as a salesman of Shelby Brand shoes. Before going to his territory, Kiser company a year ago he was for a number of years in the territory of dry goods. He finished his year as a shoe salesman with a rush of business and is going into his second with a running start.

All of the travelers for the McCord Stewart company were at the meeting of their twice-monthly sales conference. These present were H. J. Atwood, J. H. Hillot, L. V. Hallman, B. C. Jones, T. A. Lovance, H. A. McDonald and J. E. Sutton. E. M. Hilde, sales manager, presided at the meeting.

Joe Slinger, of the H. I. Slinger company, who has been ill, is rapidly improving.

W. W. Root is back in the south Georgia and from one of the most successful trips he has ever made. W. W. Root has an order in the dim distance without the aid of a field man. He will be here at the Keas-Malone company headquarters this week getting up some new samples. A number of them have been sent to his territory to make a strong wind-up for 1913.

P. W. Hunt, traveler for the McCord Stewart company, did a short visit to headquarters last week. He was in a hurry to get back to his territory around Rome, where the orders are extra good.

R. E. Dawson at Mobile, W. R. Simpson at Bainbridge, G. and L. C. Miller at Bristol, Tenn., were going to orders last week for Jones Brothers & Co.

H. S. Pulso and B. H. Jones are the Loeba & Way company travelers who came in yesterday. E. L. Kersaw and J. W. O'Connell started on the firing line. All the company's men report a phenomenal trade on holiday goods.

H. L. Watts, Montague Brothers Mississippi man, in one of his salesmen who is having big sales on holiday goods. He is expected in Saturday for a short visit in December.

HERE ARE TWO MORE NEW SALESMEN WHO WILL TRAVEL FOR SILVEY CO.

M. R. CRANE

M. R. Crane, of E. D. Crane & Co., returned last week from a business trip to Freemont, Ga., and points in that vicinity. His sales having met with a fully party of drummers at the hotel in Bremen, who with their Jones and merchandising made him long for the old times upon the road.

B. F. Heat, Florida salesman for Montague Brothers, has produced this year the best holiday goods trade this firm has ever had from their annual display at Tampa.

Carlton Hanes and Sam Hanes yesterday completed their first year with the Stacy-Malone company and both of the popular salesmen wound up with one of the best years of their career. The Hanes brothers have traveled out of Atlanta for many years and are two of the city's most successful dry goods men.

"Business usually begins to drop off with this season and our sales month is usually December but this year the Hanes brothers were in the Harrocks, manager of the Dixie Picnic and Proctor's respectively yesterday.

"Our business has been steadily increasing since September and it looks now like November and December will be two of our best months instead of the poorest."

Colonel Hart, of the S. P. Richards company, is one of the travelers who left for Atlanta some days ago. He has been traveling all the time lately and sending in an excellent business.

It's long instead of late with F. R. Root who is now in the territory of the former Atlanta whole. Root is not only a large operator in Lawrence, Ga., and Stanton, Ga., and even now he is still one of his time looking after his extensive farming interests.

Root is said to be getting out a lot of fine oak timber. His family is living here and is here for a day or two each week.

E. S. Harrison, the S. P. Richards company traveler, who was forced to abandon his recent trip because of illness, is reported to be improving rapidly.

W. C. JONES

W. C. Jones, now a salesman for the McCord Stewart company, is now in the territory of the E. L. Adams company.

R. L. Wallace, grand secretary of the Georgia-Florida division of the H. C. T., was in the wreck on the Southern road near Griffin Friday afternoon. He was considerably shaken up, but received no serious injuries.

W. R. Adams, the Gold Flour salesman, is now a Benedict. His marriage was solemnized last week at Elberton, Ga.

Lake Cain, the Stacy-Malone salesman, had a successful trip last week along the West Point railroad. This is his old territory, and all his old friends were giving him the glad hand.

All the officers of the H. C. T. council are now showing up regularly at the meetings now, said P. S. Brownlow, the secretary. "Our gatherings are lively, spirited affairs, and it will do any H. C. T. good to meet with us and participate in the proceedings."

Guy Nichols, of Smyma, Ga., is the latest addition to the shipping department of the E. L. Adams company.

W. T. Denson, W. T. Balley and R. E. Smith were the "ins" at Pain & Stamps yesterday.

Ben Thompson, one of the Pain & Stamps travelers, was ill Saturday and was unable to put in his usual work and appearance at the office.

SAMPLES AND SHIPMENTS

At the Consolidated Paper company Saturday there was such a rush of business that there was no time for giving out Firing Line news. "Too busy to talk," was the report of the hustlers of this firm.

P. S. Brownlow, secretary of U. C. T. council 595, states that a large crowd of Atlanta U. C. T.'s will go on the special train to Atlanta on November 20 to aid in the initiation of a big class of candidates which the Athens council will put through the mysteries of the order on that date.

W. O. Stamps, of Pain & Stamps, attended the installation of Alocas temple of the Shriners at Montgomery, Ala. last Thursday, when 114 candidates were put across the hot sands. Mr. Stamps states that the Montgomery Shriners are royal entertainers and he never had a jollier or more pleasant time than on the occasion of his visit to the Alabama city.

L. C. Satterfield, the hardware salesman, and member of U. C. T. council 595, reports having captured a large share of the business in his line down the Central of Georgia railroad last week.

Lawrence H. Moore, of Atlanta Agricultural works, is spending Sunday at home, having run in to bring his orders for his hobby—E-Z spring tooth cutlery. Lawrence says his sales this year have more than doubled what he had sold up to this time last season.

R. M. Cook, of Atlanta Agricultural works, while a new man, is making some of the older boys hustle to retain their laurels. Mr. Cook sending in orders for Red Seal Gunno Distributors and No. 18 Cutlery from every customer he calls on.

Jack W. Evans, of Atlanta Agricultural works, made a flying trip to south Georgia the first of the week. Back says that he has already got the factory working overtime making his hobby—Terrill Thick Center Scrapes—and he expects them to soon have to double the force.

The picture shows a steel structure almost after the fire in the case of the Empire building company on October 25 in the second story of the Wilson House, at the corner of Walton and Fry streets. The picture, which was furnished by the Worme-Candler company, which is the Atlanta representative of this line of metal office furniture, preserved the valuable papers, records, blue prints, sketches and $20 in paper money of the building company from both fire and water damage. The building was gutted by the flames and practically all the wood furniture was destroyed.

HOW to DANCE the NEW STEPS

Count Four of the Most Important Steps in the Maxixe and One that Has Caused All the Talk.

BY ELSIE JANIS.

(Copyright, 1913; by Elsie Janis.)

MY lesson this week is on the Brazilian maxixe. The first thing to do is to learn to pronounce this dance before you dance it. In Paris last summer it was beginning to be very popular, but only with the expert dancers. The "pub" as I have been doing as I advise—finding out the real name of the "darn thing." Some say Brazilian maxixe, pronounced "maxishsh"; but the real Parisians say "maxie Brazilianne."

I saw all of the best of the maxixe dancers, and while at Deauville met one of the very best, whom I had seen in Paris—Louis Bayo (pronounced Byo). His dancing partner had not yet arrived from Paris, and he was rather nervous without her, so some of our party suggested that I could not get up and dance the Brazilian with him, never having tried it before. So up I dashed. It was in the afternoon, before the dancing time, and we had it "à l'ours."

I must say that I never enjoyed a dance more. Bayo is a most wonderful leader, and any one could dance with him. All these successful teachers have a very unusual idea for teaching dancing. I wish some one would start it over here. Bayo, for instance, has a very nice house, and there at 5 o'clock he is at home. He has good music and it is a sort of tango club. People pay so much (having been invited to do so) to go in, and then instead of giving regular lessons Bayo dances with all the women.

They go there every afternoon, have a cup of tea, and perfect their tango by dancing with one of the best dancers in Paris. At the same time they take a partner with them, who watches Bayo's style, and soon this couple are taking tango orders. Quite simple, and incidentally, Bayo is not starting to death for all are delighted to be invited to pay over their hard earned cash.

Acrobatic But Graceful.

The Brazilian maxixe never will rival the tango, one-step, or waltz, in my opinion; it is too acrobatic. To dance it you are really working quite hard. You start off like they used to in the old fashioned two-step, taking two steps each way, but on the "back" with the feet turned up. It sounds comic, but is really a very graceful dance.

The man's chest rests against the girl's—but don't get excited; it is only for a moment. As they turn from side to side their heads turn also, so that on the second two steps they are practically looking back over their shoulders. They do this step about four times each way; then they change positions to this extent: the girl places her left arm behind her, meeting the man's left arm behind her waist. The girl's right hand goes up over her head, as in an old fashioned minuet, and the man's right hand meets it up there, holding it by the very tips of the fingers; and they do the same two steps each way about four times. Then, retaining that position, they go right steps to the right, as if they were doing an old fashioned polka, and eight steps back, turning their heads to the left over their shoulders, changing feet at the end of the first eight and making a slight pause to do so.

At the finish of the eight steps coming back to the left, the man retains his hold upon the girl's hands, but she turns in his hands so that her back is to him. Still holding his hand, she pulls his left arm about her waist (after you know the dance it is not necessary to pull the hand there) and places her left hand on top of it to hold it there (also unnecessary after practice). His right arm goes right out straight and her right hand right on top of it, so that they are now in one of the most graceful positions in any dance. This change of position is very pretty and wants to be done quickly.

Second Position—Two to the Right Looking over Shoulders.

First Position Maxixe—Two to the Left.

Like London Bridge.

Now, having accomplished the change of turn, you start off around the room like a couple of kids, taking the same two steps on each side about eight times; or if you like this step, which is lots "fun," do it as long as you like—it is quite decent.

The next step is a little difficult, but I will endeavor to simplify it as much as possible and at the same time keep the grace in it. After you have done that last step until you've had enough, give the partner warning that the next step is fun, and then do twice each way with the same two steps; and while you are "slag" them along with the same two steps (that should be simple) and step keep on holding hands (that should be simple) and with the same "get." Lift the arms right above the head, like a couple of kids playing "London bridge."

Third Position: Changing the Hands Eight Steps Straight Ahead in this Position Then Pause Turn Quickly And Eight the Other Way, Retaining the Same Hold.

It is not as easy as it sounds, for remember you keep dancing all the time—two, right; one, two, left, etc. Now comes the big show. When you succeed in looking like "London bridge was falling down," only you don't leave any room for people to pass between and say which they choose, diamonds or rubies (then was the childhood days!), you break suddenly and go back to the original position. Do the first step four times, and now comes it—the step that they are already proclaiming an indecent, and I, who have a mother who is very fussy about how her own child dances, have declared many times without feeling indecent. I may have looked it pleased you would stop and listen. Last minute at Narragansett Pier I gave the music for one of the best maxixes to the Casino orchestra, and though so on late that it was there about five requests a day for it. It is extremely thrilling.

"Amaze" is the name of the most popular maxixe in Paris today. It cannot be purchased in America yet, but with all the people returning from Europe and many bringing music home it will not be long, and we will have it. I may get very generous and give you an introduction of it. In the meantime any one who really wants it can write to the publisher in Paris and have it beside of three weeks. Write to Edouard Balzer, 22 Rue Chausse, Paris, and ask for "The Ten Maxixe Brazilianne Amaze." It is about one of the most attractive bits of music I have ever heard.

Dance Sailed in Afternoon Gown.

Until we import tunes I must suggest some substitute. The best I can think of at the moment would be the "Maurice Tango," played half again as fast as it is written, or "Tres Morituras," played about half as fast as it is written. Either one will do. That seems better, but try it. You see, after all, the maxixe is very like the old two-step, only over there they put Spanish bass (not fish) to it that makes it grand!

I can imagine that some people are wondering why I had dancing pictures taken in an afternoon costume and hat, but there is a bit of romance connected with the "reason why" (not by Mrs. Olm). It is the duplicate of a gown that I got in Paris and learned to dance the maxixe in. Every afternoon a crowd of us would go on one of those tea-dansants and dance until nearly midnight. Every one wore this type of dress, and had these wonderful for the tango and maxixe, so I thought it would be just as well to keep in the atmosphere of the tea-dansant.

In starting the maxixe and in all the steps remember that instead of putting your toes on the floor you put your feet down. This does not hold good in the first step, where the girl's back is to the man and they go around the room. In this step you start off with the heel on the ground, and then, of course, to open again and get around the room, you must go on your right foot. In the fifth step it is also unnecessary to touch the heel movement; in fact, the pointing of the toe in the kicks is very essential, and one of the prettiest parts of the step is when the man leans back and the girl leans forward—their feet meet just there.

Lots of Fun Learning It.

If this dance ever becomes popular it will attract a great many chances for "getting even." Instead of us who do now when hated rivals pass, coyly extending the foot and tripping them, we will be able to get in front of them and, while executing a perfectly legitimate maxixe kick that is very funny in the chest. I may add that when this dance comes into the own the skirt of today will have to be slit up the back and a gusset of corduroy or accordion plaiting inserted therein. For any woman who attempts to maxixe in a smart, up to date, "trip up your partner" skirt had better practice on the fall into a graceful heap at home before going to a dance. Isn't it awful the way the man gets the best of it?—I am not a sufferer—always? Sylvia may come, and she'll say go, but trousers go on forever—at least I hope they will keep on "going on" forever.

I read last week that the maxixe is to replace the tango, but before that happens some one will have to invent a collar for the man that will not wilt. The maxixe will make the average collar look very uncomfortable. Despite all these little items that argue against this new dance, I would advise dance-down to the maxixe, because it is a very amusing dance and you will have lots of fun learning it. Note: Do not try to be "original"—just go on it and have a good time. It will surely hurt any one, and it will hurt. Make one more beautiful and help you to say other dance you may try.

The next of the program will be the bed-toe walk, a most wonderful dance, which is stepping right, as a waltz to the one-step.

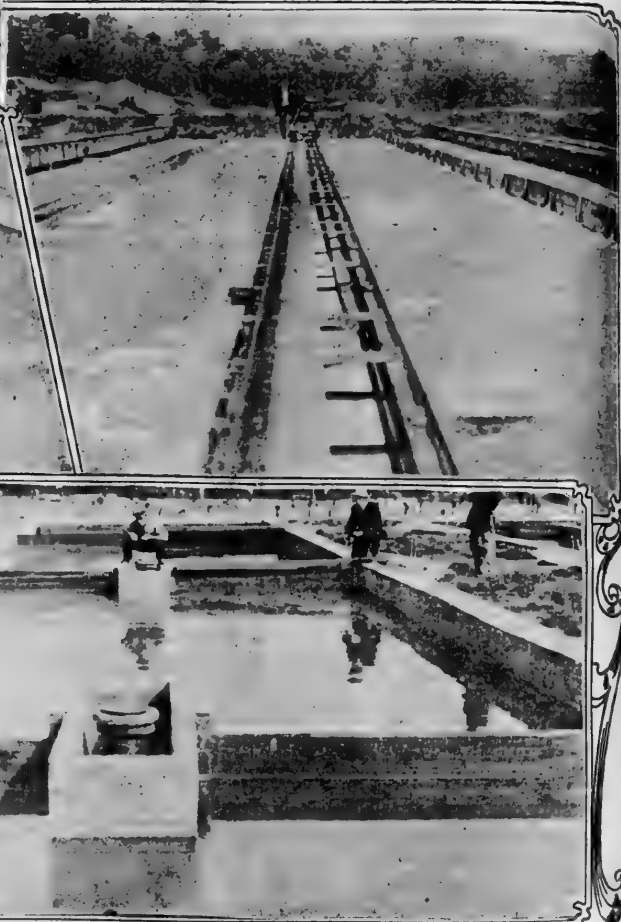

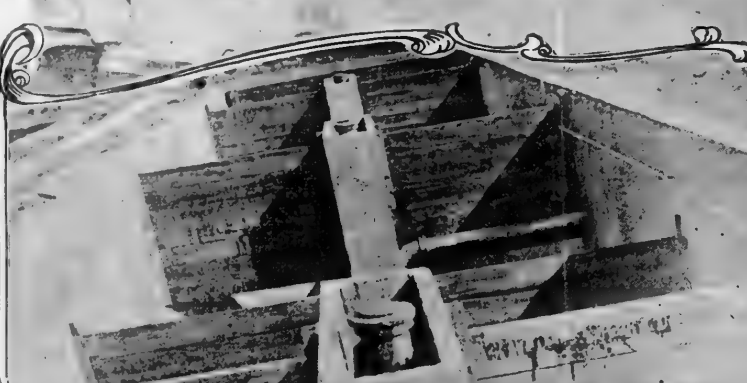

Music New to Us.

These are the five variations of the Brazilian maxixe. I feel sure that you are wondering what sort of music this weird dance is done to. And there lies the real reason why this dance will not, at least for a few years, be very popular in America. The music is different from anything we have ever here. I don't know anything that sounds like it at all. It is very foreign. If you heard

Atlanta's $2,000,000 Disposal Plant

Views of the Peaches Creek disposal plant, which is the largest of its sort in the United States, and has excited the interest of engineers throughout the country. At the top of the page are shown engineers making a test of sewage, which has been purified completely by the action of the plant.

In a certain hollow of the hills out well nigh every metropolis of the Peachtree road, where once the water's empire has a cleaner, easier and more efficient method of sanitation the "rebel yell" was tossed in echoes through the piney forests. It is a clean, broad stretch of concrete and steel that is unique in that it was the first thing of its kind in the United States. Nearly fifty years ago men in blue and gray cut great gulches in the red soil to lay out the extent of opening a road red earth to bulwark them from the Imhoff tanks.

When Dr. Rudolph Hering, of New York, consulting engineer for this city, came home from Europe three years ago with glowing accounts of the new invention he had seen at Essen, the city fathers took to his word to the extent of opening a road red earth to bulwark them from the Imhoff tanks.

When Dr. Hering, in order to get his tanks established on this side of the Atlantic, was asked to let Atlanta have them without charging this city a penny, a distinct departure from the procedure with German towns, when it is known that American promoters have been hot after Dr. Imhoff to get the use of his patents and that they are estimated at a value of a million or more, the boon conferred on Atlanta by the young inventor is seen to be of no small value.

But Dr. Imhoff on his recent visit here said that he was satisfied. The establishment of the tanks here and their immediate success has led other cities to take up the new system, until now there are about fifty cities which have Imhoff tanks in process of construction. The result will be a fortune for the young German, as so many engineers from all over the country have visited the local tanks that it seems probable the Imhoff system will take precedence over all others in the United States.

Atlanta has placed the Imhoff tanks in her three disposal plants, at Peachtree Creek, Proctor's Creek and Intrenchment Creek. The two former are in operation, while the latter will soon be finished and in working order.

A trip through either the Peachtree creek plant or through the Proctor's creek plant is like watching the digestive organs of the city in action.

The Peachtree creek plant is just beyond the city limits, not far from Brookwood. A bird's-eye view of the plant shows you four concrete sections, containing three Imhoff tanks in each, spread out over a small area. At one end is the mouth of the sewer, at the other end is the siphon of the four compartments and over, that the screen is now stationary. In one year the screen collector but a wheel-barrow full of dirt, and about an ounce number, at Proctor's creek—now sparkling, the purified water a foot into the gravel bed.

Instead of a screen at Peachtree creek, they have beds of broken gravel known as "roughing filters." They are one foot deep and catch any sewage may be reversed here so that these filters may be cleaned.

Sometimes scum collects on the top of the water in the tanks. To clear of this scum, which, although not harmful in any way, doesn't look very beautiful, a hose is turned on and water sprinkled on the water's surface. The drops break up the scum and it settles, to be sent through the tanks like the rest of the sewage.

FURTHER PURIFICATION.
After the sewage leaves the screen or the roughing filters it is sent through another process of purification, the last. Next to the creek there is a great bed of broken rock, six feet deep and about fifty yards long. Long funnels stick up from it, between them, the heads of funnels.

The funnels serve no other purpose than to drive wind down among the rocks, keep them separated and put oxygen into the water.

The turning on of a monitor, which is turned from the effluent, however, much impure solution. At the same time, the chamber has used the refuse can be cleared in a day.

From the grit chambers the sewage flows down into the Imhoff tank compartments, separating into each the fountain. It is a beautiful sight when all the fountains—there are 227 of them at Proctor's creek and about an ounce number, at Peachtree creek—now sparkling, the purified water a foot into the gravel bed.

Captain Clayton says that he intends to place electric lights among the fountains, a scheme which will enhance its beauty at night.

Soaking down through the gravel beds, the sewage comes out, water so pure that it bears not the slightest trace of sewer scent and by analysis shows that it is as pure as the water of the creek into which it flows.

Atlanta's big plants are better than described. For months engineers from cities all over the union have visited them and gone away marveling. Only last week the official sanitary inspector of the United States department of agriculture pronounced them "the finest in the world."

INSPECTOR'S REPORT.
This inspector was George J. Shaw, who is making a tour of all big cities in the United States to look into sanitary conditions.

"Atlanta," said Mr. Shaw, "has the best sewage disposal facilities in the country, and on account of several new innovations, the best of any anywhere in the world, in my opinion."

Mr. Shaw has visited Chicago, Philadelphia, New York, Washington and nowhere, he says, can sewage disposal compare to Atlanta's. Philadelphia is only lately coming to recognize the advantages of the system in use here, and after communicating with local officials, has installed one Imhoff tank as an experiment. It proved so successful that the Quaker capital will install the entire sewage disposal system of the same order.

Atlanta has had its new system in use but a few months. The Proctor's creek plant has been in use the longest, the Peachtree creek plant hardly three weeks, and the Intrenchment creek plant, near the federal prison, will start operation about the first of January.

The disposal plant will operate in any kind of weather, and apparently is so simple that it entails little expense, the greatest cost being with installation.

Dyed Oranges
(Special Cable to The Journal.)
PARIS—Finding that her customers liked her oranges to be of a deep color, Mme. Dupire has been in the habit of dyeing mahogany stain and dipping her oranges into it.

Phoned $18 by the Paris correspondent, who stated that this practice was being followed by other French growers, who are desirous to satisfy their customers' wishes for oranges of a gorgeous red color.

EXERCISING HEALTH and BEAUTY

By MRS. HENRY SYMES

MEDICINE BALL VERSUS the DOCTOR

The Over Curve Strengthens the Back

Bending Reduces the Abdomen

THE value of the medicine ball has long been recognized in the gymnasium, but as yet few people have realized how worth while it is to have one in the home. Such a ball will cost you a few dollars, but the money will be well spent if you use your purchase regularly and thus ward off any annoying doctor bills. Proper exercise with the ball, brings every muscle into action and thereby benefits the entire system. A body well developed, a stomach that is strong, an eye that is alive and bright, and a hand that is steady are the envy of all.

Daily exercise is necessary to set rid of that "tired feeling" and to drive dull care away. Not only is the body developed by systematic exercise, but the brain is also benefited and becomes more active. Exercise increases the heart action and a vigorous heart gives one a feeling of courage and general elation.

An important feature of exercise is that a part of it, at least, shall afford amusement as well as recreation and diversion; so, with this thought in mind, the medicine ball receives highest recommendations from reputable physical instructors.

A corrective for round shoulders there is nothing better than the medicine ball. The ball is raised high above the head and thrown over to one's partner. Another benefit derived from this particular exercise is the development of the chest and lungs.

Before I give any further directions it is advisable and necessary, I think, to impress upon your mind the importance of going through these exercises with a cheerful and happy attitude. If you cannot wear a sailor blouse and gloves, get on a sweater, or a short skirt, and be sure to wear shoes with low heels. This morning is a short time to perform, so with your windows open wide and your breathing apparatus in proper working order, let us begin.

Parasite in proper working order, set to work to improve the body and mind. Massage with olive butter will develop the arms, but quicker results will be obtained if exercise is taken in connection with the massage. Stand erect and hold the medicine ball in the hollow of the right arm, then describe a semicircle by throwing the ball to the other hand, which is held out from the body in a line with the shoulder. You may not be able to repeat this movement very often at first, on account of the muscles of the abdomen becoming tired. It is always best to begin slowly at first and then gradually increase the number of times as you become more adept.

Now, change your position to a standing one and, with your back to your partner, raise the ball high above the head and throw it to him. This exercise should be practiced alternately with the foregoing one, for the constant bending will tend to decrease the waist measurement, and will give tension to the body.

With the ball held in the hollow of the right arm, throw it to your partner, who holds her hands high above her head. When she throws it back to you, catch it in your left arm and throw it back from that one. This will stimulate any tired liver which may be giving you trouble.

If when you could not appreciate the value of this remarkable exercise, there would be less sitting in doctors' offices and less recouping of ill-effects which are big enough to affect the whole physical condition. Remember that you are never too old to exercise, and no woman should feel any harmful results from this medicine ball, which is proving every day a more powerful friend of the doctor.

ORIENT RULES THE NEWEST PARIS GOWNS.

BY MARY BULL.

Drawings by Marie F. Walsh from EXCLUSIVE PARIS PHOTOGRAPHS.

The shoulders and are then brought down wooden buttons. There is a small chandaise of white tulle which shows above the waist in front and at the back of the neck. Model A from Maison Royal.

Gown of valour de soie in a soft green shade. There are three skirts, each one being slightly fuller than the one below, the top one showing several shallow plaits arranged at the waist band. The two upper skirts terminate in deep points in the back. The bodice blouses both back and front and is cut with the upper part of the sleeves a kimono. The entire top of the shoulders and the sleeves as far as the seam are embroidered in wools, the colors being soft reds, browns and blues. The lower part of the sleeves fit closely and is buttoned up on the under side as far as the elbow. The coat of black satin, begins in the back and is passed about the waist, crosses in front, and is then taken again to the back, where it is fast in a large bow without ends, rather low. There is a small pendant collar in the neck of black satin, and from this falls a jabot of lace. Model from Frocks.

Miner gown showing a draped skirt of white satin, all the drapery being put in the front, where it is held up by a little in the bottom. The top of the skirt falls over the waist. A small chandaise is attached to the waist. The bodice is covered in the same white satin as the skirt, but the bodice is made of black net edged with a narrow pearl trim. The bodice is cut with a small pendant collar in the neck of black satin, and from this falls a jabot of lace. Model from Frocks.

PARIS Special Correspondence.—At the very start of the showing of models this season it was noticed the variety in style was unusually great and that, although in certain particulars all the noted couturiers were in unison, equally there was much diversity in their models and in many essentials they were widely at variance. These differences seem to be growing instead of lessening, so that really now a woman who aims to be in the latest mode can just about wear what she chooses and still be in vogue in the height of fashion.

Where some of the dressmakers are showing plain things and leaving the cutting of the skirt to be handled rather than shown, others are modeling upon plain effects and say that the objective of fashion in the height of beauty. The influence of the orient is to be seen in many of the newest gowns. There are all sorts of the most pronounced French fashions which have evidently been inspired by the paintings of the beauties of imperial Louis, and there are others which are distinctly Chinese, especially as regards their coloring, and are smart in the way.

Long coats are being worn and are so short one would think it depends upon whether you have your costume made by Redfern, Worth, Paquin, or Bonch-Brisson. Trim, dainty, long waisted bodies are an smart as possible and so are waisted, short waisted ones, who are no fit to them, however. For one you must go to Cherin's for the other to J. Maillot. Royal, Paquin, establishment considers the skirt as the best and do the clients who come from a considerable "waiting for every customer."

I thought of many of the "dresses" which I saw of the principal dressmakers, and did not what they had to say in regard to the new fashions as being and a satisfactory comparison.

Worth Dishes During Creations.
Naturally the dress establishments which were Worth's and Paquin's, and although this does not mean that some of the things which are so important and that they are not as much to be considered. Worth's models are not as much to be considered as Paquin's, and he has a number of models to point of view, and of the contents of his store as Paquin's, he has one of the oldest in Paris and experience. The former ranks as being conservative in a degree that none of the others can be compared to as he has a number of years of experience, and he has an ability to create that any other dressmaker has an ability to create, and he does not seek to attract attention.

Mr. Jean Worth is the member of the firm who does the talking, and his ideas are exactly what one would expect who knows the policy of their great house. He thinks that no Parisian dressmaker adds to his reputation by the making of too daring creations, neither does he care to make gowns that reveal the feminine figure in such a manner that their wearers will be made conspicuous, nor does he think anything exaggerated in good taste. The drawing rooms of royalty and of women of fashion are his horizon, and in these what is daring is not of the picture. Sweeping lines, stately draperies, and gowns that suggest the figure but do not reveal it are what he considers good, and anything that is usually thought to show either the leg, the shoulders, or too much of the arms he will not tolerate nor will he supply these even to embrace a dashing customer.

Magnificence are Worth's great fancy, and not only fabrics but trimmings, embroideries, and lace, and one who always knows that a dinner or ball gown made in his Rue de la Paix establishment will have the handsomeness of any one of these, or of all if it is desirable.

This season Worth is not going to do any extent for the ordinary frock, although he is showing several models in which this appears. They are all however, evening frocks which are trained, and the crinolite appears in a decidedly modified form, to emphasize a tunic of lace or to better bring out the quality of some exquisite fur. Instead of much drapery he is using many occasions, and these are rather plain, falling with some fullness over the underdrift.

The conception to a general fashion that Worth, with all the others of his profession, is making is in the width of the underdrift, and this is just as narrow as it can be made, particularly about the feet. Worth's waisted coats are moderately long and they are fairly super-overs—long and much fuller than they have been. He is not using bright colors for these and he is limiting most of them with dark fur, sable, and silver fur in preference to ermine, chinchilla, and the like.

Reputation for Originality.
Redfern may always be counted upon for original ideas, and this may be one of the reasons why so many plays are dressed by him and why so many of the prettiest and smartest actresses go to him for frocks. He himself a most conventional man and by no means young, he seems to have a fund of ideas which may be brought into the planning of gowns for his personal customers, even when they do not appear in his models. In fact, personality, or rather individuality, is what Redfern feels most strongly about, and in a chat with him he had much to say on this subject.

"I believe," he said, "in the individual gown for the individual woman, and that it should serve as an indication of her character or what she would like to express rather than be a merely pretty setting for an attractive figure. This is why when I dress a play I always insist upon knowing the character of the actresses trimming with flowers, put on in garlands, and so while they are not really period gowns, they strongly favor the most picturesque of French styles. He is using, for instance, many satin frocks, which trail a little, and are, of course, opened at one side, possibly both. In these openings lace will be seen, and on the lace there will be bouquets or garlands of the most lovely silk flowers and in the softest of shades. Other clusters or garlands will appear on a lace tunic or the overskirt may be possibly bordered with a single line of blooms simply delightful to see.

Colored fur is another specialty of this establishment, and, while I do not usually care for this, some that he is using is so effective that I cannot help but admire. Long velvet cloaks in shades of red, orange, and blue are trimmed with huge collars of fox dyed to match, and frequently the fur takes the form of a cape or hood, or it will appear as a little inner jacket over which falls the velvet mantle.

The most original wrap I have seen at any of the dressmakers has been at Redfern's, and it was simply a long black velvet cloak, in shape like a Hanlet cape, which hung in long folds over a charming blouse of ermine. This cloak was fastened with a huge gold ornament about midway down in front, by which it could be thrown over one shoulder and fastened. It was wonderfully stunning, especially when worn over a flame colored satin frock trimmed with black and white lace.

Drapery and Fullness.
There is probably no other one establishment better known in America than Paquin, and so all models that come from there are apt to be seen many times over, or, if not seen, certainly much written of. This year many models from there are so marvellously draped they are beyond description, for drapery and fullness is one of the marks of this season's Paquin's gowns. There are draped underskirts, over which will be seen two or three over-dresses, these sometimes draped, and the same idea will be carried out in the bodices and even sleeves. Sashes are also a great feature here, and some of these are so enormously wide they nearly reach to the knees, the adjusting of them requiring a most delicate hand.

Evening Frocks Flower Trimmed.
Redfern is still making the all right, for he was one of the first who brought out this fashion, but never in an exaggerated form; but this year the skirts from there are narrower than ever, so the openings are a necessity. But he is doing some perfectly charming things in these all affairs, which take away from them any suggestion of vulgarity. In some he is arranging plaits of chiffon, which are so full that not even a glimpse of an ankle can be seen. In others there will appear a fall of lace, over which will hang some bit of heavy embroidery, or there will be a motive in some heavy passementerie, which will fill the space and give a dash of color to a somber frock.

Many of Redfern's evening frocks this season he is the figure at all, and they fall down well toward the bottom of the skirt and sometimes are seen caught in rather soft fashion. They do not sound becoming, but they are, and the contrast of colors between and gown is always effective.

In evening frocks Paquin is employing much which is frequently put in in parts these being mounted onto satin skirts. Sashes also appear on these and the most gorgeous and beautifully colored brocade velvets and silks. Most look extremely simple, for what could be simpler than a pale plume and a neck, but the sashes appear above, below, and in and out of the puffs and are caught and fastened so ingeniously that their appearance of simplicity is a mark to those who would aspire to copy.

Boleros For Street Costumes.
Becho's Bolero was one of the other dressmakers who tried, and here I found, strongly enough, in all great costumes nothing but boleros, or so few of the latter they do not count. They were loosely fitting bodies, which just seemed to hang on the shoulders, but were outside coats. A number of these were made of material which were worn with plain skirts, velvet de laine, and the like, and they were frequently lined with fur, which also lined them.

Another model was short in front, but it was carried into the figure under the arm and had a long waist line in the back, which was further emphasized by its being cut in a shape. In this costume both skirt and bodice were alike and in a dark gray velvet de laine and they were several novel features about it, that were worth mentioning. The skirt, of course, was narrow, and from there fell a little apron of deep red cashmere which had no connection with the remainder of the costume. In the back there were three overskirts, the top one being quite full and each pointing down slightly toward the side of the front, where they were held in place by the red silk apron. There was a great fur collar on the coat, this being attached to the garment by the top of plaiting of red silk, and the same little plaiting was placed above the fur collar on the sleeves, it was also present and it was young, and this quality is characteristic of most of the clothes from Becho's.

Their evening frocks are young, nearly all of them being short, and they have round bodices with full little away backs that are attractive. Most of them had an overskirt and a lot of them were lined to keep away from the gown, but there were just as many that were being made to fall close to the gown. They were quite as smart. In fact, it seems to me that the best and most refined frock to have a short little, though it may be too soon to make such a prediction.

the figure at all, and they fall down well toward the bottom of the skirt and sometimes are seen caught in rather soft fashion. They do not sound becoming, but they are, and the contrast of colors between and gown is always effective.

In evening frocks Paquin is employing much which is frequently put in in parts these being mounted onto satin skirts. Sashes also appear on these and the most gorgeous and beautifully colored brocade velvets and silks. Most look extremely simple, for what could be simpler than a pale plume and a neck, but the sashes appear above, below, and in and out of the puffs and are caught and fastened so ingeniously that their appearance of simplicity is a mark to those who would aspire to copy.

Boleros For Street Costumes.
Becho's Bolero was one of the other dressmakers who tried, and here I found, strongly enough, in all great costumes nothing but boleros, or so few of the latter they do not count. They were loosely fitting bodies, which just seemed to hang on the shoulders, but were outside coats. A number of these were made of material which were worn with plain skirts, velvet de laine, and the like, and they were frequently lined with fur, which also lined them.

Another model was short in front, but it was carried into the figure under the arm and had a long waist line in the back, which was further emphasized by its being cut in a shape. In this costume both skirt and bodice were alike and in a dark gray velvet de laine and they were several novel features about it, that were worth mentioning. The skirt, of course, was narrow, and from there fell a little apron of deep red cashmere which had no connection with the remainder of the costume. In the back there were three overskirts, the top one being quite full and each pointing down slightly toward the side of the front, where they were held in place by the red silk apron. There was a great fur collar on the coat, this being attached to the garment by the top of plaiting of red silk, and the same little plaiting was placed above the fur collar on the sleeves, it was also present and it was young, and this quality is characteristic of most of the clothes from Becho's.

Their evening frocks are young, nearly all of them being short, and they have round bodices with full little away backs that are attractive. Most of them had an overskirt and a lot of them were lined to keep away from the gown, but there were just as many that were being made to fall close to the gown. They were quite as smart. In fact, it seems to me that the best and most refined frock to have a short little, though it may be too soon to make such a prediction.

ATLANTA REFERRED TO POST AT AUSTRIAN COURT

POST as reader to the Empress of Austria was refused by Mrs. Gabrielle Boeckh, of 223 Forrest avenue, that she might become a "citizen" of America.

This was years ago. The Empress Elizabeth, who took to literature, wished a reader skilled in various languages. Mrs. Boeckh, then a girl, read not only German, but French, Italian, English, and even Russian.

She seemed fitted above all others for the important post of reader to the empress. Her selection pleased the Empress Elizabeth, and the appointment was made. Immediately afterward it was refused.

This was an astonishing thing in the history of a cabinet position in America. But Mrs. Boeckh had been born democratic, although the place of birth was Vienna; and her dislike for courts and court ways was ancient.

Her father was surgeon in the army with the rank of major; and fought for "causes" had been part of her training. The army could never admit civilians to an equal footing and the court was the apex of society.

She admitted in part the superiority of the army.

"With all my democratic views," she said, speaking of old days, "I never could have married a civilian."

But she was out of sympathy with that life. She believed that the "causes" with the exception of the army's agency, was snobbish.

ALWAYS DEMOCRATIC. Such opinions in Vienna, here the condition of life into which one is born identifies one for all time. Mrs. Boeckh was constant throughout to democracy, except for the army.

The post of reader to the empress would have brought her into contact with the foremost woman of Austria. Few positions at court, other than those purely honorary, were more eagerly sought. She refused at once, since the court ways were undemocratic, and she had lost patience entirely with aristocratic pretensions.

It was then Mrs. Boeckh was married; shortly afterward, she and her husband decided upon the new country of America, which was founded upon democracy. They also were abolitionists, and upon first coming to America, their sympathies were with the north, and Mr. Boeckh even collated with the army of the north.

But after reconstruction days, when they made their home in Atlanta, following a long residence in Cincinnati, they discovered the fellowship which they had found lacking in Vienna, and had sought in the new country.

During the thirty years which followed, Mrs. Boeckh not once has felt homesick for Austria or regret for the post which she refused as reader to the empress. She says Atlanta is better than the Austrian court; being an American citizen is better than being reader to the empress.

YOUNG AT 78 YEARS. Perhaps, because of her democracy, her hair is black at seventy-eight, her words are cheery, her spirit is young. She welcomes you into her home with cordiality.

"But there is nothing I can tell," she protests. "That was all so long ago. It is long enough to be forgotten at once, since the court ways were undemocratic, and she had lost patience entirely with aristocratic pretensions."

for and I was glad, because it is a great calling. Some of my chieftains, give point to her opinion. I don't live here, others elsewhere. Even when I was young I had a liking for languages, and it seems that I had a knack for learning Western and Atlantic railroad, in the time he has seen round the country, up and down the railway station in Scotland. It gives you an insight into books. You never can get through translation. English is becoming a compulsory study in many European countries; it is even possible to travel without inconvenience through Europe, knowing only English. ## Even Carlyle Wrote on House-Hunting

LONDON.—The season of house-hunting is on, and it seems to have brought in this year a season of discovery of hitherto unpublished letters of famous people. The latest is one from Carlyle, which has to do with house hunting and shows the perfect sympathy with the many thousands in all countries who are this month busily looking for a new home to live in.

"My whole soul grows sick in the business of house seeking," wrote the Sage of Chelsea. "I get to think with a kind of comfort of the grim some six feet by three, which will need no seeking." The letter was written from Craignepoth, to Mrs. Austin, the wife of John Austin, an celebrated jurist, at the time the Carlyles were preparing to mention themselves in London. The letter follows:

"Craignepoth, March 30, 1834. "My Dear Mrs. Austin—If the Kensington Householders are like the Medes and Persians, whose law with you, our pretty little speculations has all gone awry, and this news is already little other than a waste paper. My data, you perceive, is the 30th, and your letter did not reach us till late in the evening of the appointed 19th. We have at the utmost only two Post-days left, in general only one (the Wednesday, which answers to your London Monday); and tho' it is as checked, both Post-days did their duty, your express happily fall between them, and so here we are! I much fear our Ladyday Competitor will have carried the palm; the rather as he has now only some four free days before Ladyday itself arrive. What is to be attempted, however, we will still attempt. A moorland post-office lies some six miles from us, over the mountains; thither will I, this blessed spring day, with this written abet in my pocket; that is, no matter what is in 'Destiny, there we shall meet."

NO NEED OF OTHER DEVILS. "You are very kind and helpful; and yet it is almost cruel to task your kindness. With clamorous prayers, my dear one has chosen to do; no need of other devils to join in the assault. For the rest, as to 'responsibility,' take no thought of it. I am well persuaded you can please us better than we could ourselves, were we already on the spot. My whole soul grows sick in the business of house seeking; I get to think with a kind of comfort of the grim some six feet by three, which will need no seeking. In return, I ought to profess myself humble in my requisitions as to that matter. I must have air to breathe; a room may have sleep also, or which latter object, procul, O procul este, (excuse me) ye accused Tribes of Bona, ye loud wailing wretches, that awaken the world every hour only to say what's clock it is! Other indispensable requisitions I have none."

"The house which Lucretia and you describe as so hospitably snug as if it had been expressly built for us

Our answer is at once. Secure it for Whitsunday. If it is still attainable. Till we hear otherwise we will still have a kind of hope that it may. If you do so prosper, there will still be various other inquiries to trouble you with, various minor arrangements to tax your kind discretion with. For example, what are the fixtures; beyond grass? We have window curtains, venetian blinds, etc., which will be useless here, which might chance to fit them. The measured dimensions of all the rooms and windows (if you can procure them) will bring the whole matter before us. The general outline of the House I already have, by assurance of Imagination, a sunk story, three raised ones, the little bedchamber of garden before the house, or behind it, as shall please the Fate. You must, on a whole, consent to consider us as a Brother and Sister in this matter, and freely sign your head as well as your feet."

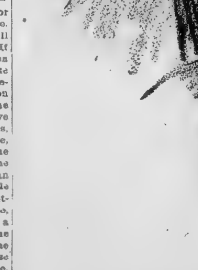

"WAX CLOTH FOR A LOBBY." "My dame bids me say that as to Carpet (since those here, not, in Scotland adage, 'As good fish in the Hope of a kind that I call desperate, as ever came out of it,' which, if it has served for broken-hearted (he and fraud), and yet under them, and symbolically hid in them, are Edwicks and Warrens (the eternal and the true) of this same desperate Mrs. Hops I have for many years (God be thanked for it!) never been bereft, nay, on the whole grown fat and fatter of it. For the present I do yourself, as you can undertake. In a little hope, or only

Heaven bless you for it. "And so, with all manner of good wishes and as much of Hope 'desperate' and other as may be, ever your affectionate "T. CARLYLE. "My wife full of care, trembles and headaches, and I doubt also of indolence, bribes me to write this letter not unwillingly, and I hope you are to take as hers and her legs waste weltering chaos; may the with it."

Sky-line of Atlanta as it is today, and an imaginative drawing of the city as the artist conceives it to be ten years from now.

By Ward S. Greene

ATLANTA, Nov. 2.—The architect says that the new skyscraper building once a week, but that it has been more conservative and placed them in Atlanta at the average of one a month.

Fighting at that rate, Atlanta ten years from now would be the uncouth, yoke's definition of New York. A small body of people entirely surrounded by skyscrapers. We would all spend half our time going up, and the other half going down, and the elevator boys would leave the world stranded if the leaders ordered a strike.

While it would hardly do us yet to flatter on which of the 25 buildings pronounced for next year you intend to occupy, late speculation has a ripe field for browsing in the past months which the next ten years hold out for Atlanta.

Should some local Rip Van Winkle take a long nap under a Stone Mountain ledge and suddenly awake the ten years from now, blood would flow toward the west, what strange sights would welcome him as late perhaps speeding Atlantawagon on that new interurban Stone Mountain trolley line, he gazed out at the city of his birth.

Where are the good old days building of yesterday? He might inquire of the conductor. And that worthy, no doubt speaking modern 1913 slang, would slide him a snarl of talk that, translated to the ancients' tongue, might reveal changes past and strange when compared with the good old days of the year 1913.

These "wall knower" former residents who occasionally make port in Atlanta are always ready to marvel at the innovations that have occurred here since they left in '79. Would it be unusual for some traveler, even now cheering the city's threshold to return after a decade and discover that the loom of progress has woven a wondrous web of a newer and more exotic fabric than the one he left behind him?

Judging of the future by the past, that good old habit of Patrick Henry's, we can expect a municipal piece of Atlanta property that sold for a great price in the sixties, according to legend, is worth now a fabulous sum, think before you cynicize over the days to come.

PLAZA PLAN.

Even now Atlanta is on the brink of the biggest project in the annals of the city. The building of the plaza over the railroad tracks, should it go forward as planned, will not only be the most important undertaking the firm, corporation or council ever tried here, but it will change the character of downtown Atlanta as nothing ever has before or ever will.

The original plan, if adhered to, will embrace the construction of a concrete bridge from Forsyth street to the Union depot, a block of five feet over the mass of railroad tracks, where the depot now is. It will include a station, including a monster building for railroad offices.

The situation of the ample bus-space, the furnishing of a downtown park, the plain for a city market, many other good things which may accrue from the plan, have been cited time and again. Whether all these turn out as expected, is merely a matter of speculation.

A DIFFERENT CITY.

Certain it is, that the present appearance of the proposed scheme of operations will be turned completely topsy-turvy. How will it seem entering Atlanta on a train to rear for blocks beneath a great black dome, shot with darkness, drifting smoke, the lighting eyes of a thousand electric lights? How will it seem to clamber to the street and instead of gazing downward at the engine puffing back and forth in the yards, meet instead the pleasing prospect of a stretch of tiled asphalt, green trees, grass and hurrying crowds?

It will seem "named" queer! To that traveler who left it in 1913, again, who returned to find it in 1923.

"Why, Atlantians who left home while Peachtree street and Ivy street were undergoing their recent transformation, exclaimed with wonder when they first saw them again. Perhaps you remember how rather queer it looked that first time you boarded the trolley and the imperious car broad street between the old dirt banks scarred and backed where the trolley had been its way. And Ivy street in its new clothes is even yet an object of curiosity to many."

ANOTHER TRANSFORMATION.

Almost as much of a transformation as was wrought by the Pean-came the first of several office buildings. Still later from the same rise the Empire building shot into prominence. It was followed by the Fourth National bank building. These were shouldered aside by the Candler building, and all in turn had to give a little room for the Atlanta National bank building and the Third National bank building. And today two new beacons, the Healey and the Hurt buildings, lift their bulks above the trees, while still farther out the Peachtree ridge church spires that were never there before, the blocky squares of hotels, the towering apartment houses, all have left the horizon.

And views from the south side, the west side, any old side, show the same changes, the same iron pace of progress, pushing its tentacles skyward.

And no doubt if the city has not run over your little country road ten years from now you can tell the same rise and see even higher and more scattered shafts shattering the blue.

AN AVIATOR TOWER.

Charles W. Brooks, Jr., recently arrived from New York to make his home in Atlanta, has purchased a large tract in local suburbs, and declares that if the progress of the age warrants it, that he will erect an aviator tower on one of his lots near a local park.

This idea, while still in its embryonic stage, will assuredly be carried out, says Mr. Brooks. If aviation then over-catches on locally as it has in the north and east.

An aviator tower would be a unique phase of the city's skyline, especially if some of the city's business circles about it as an honor over the prospect from that lofty road.

BUILDING STATISTICS.

No trace of indication of building activity in Atlanta in the last ten years, from which a good population deduction might be made, can be obtained that of the local building inspectors office. A compilation of reports on jobs here since 1907 runs as follows:

Year	Amount
1907	$1,514,645
1908	2,123,231
1909	2,182,100
1910	4,554,777
1911	4,533,300
1912	5,331,345
1913	7,485,839
1914	5,215,540
1915	9,347,411

In the office of the building inspector it is stated that while permits this year will not show the great amount of last year, they are at least such that of 1911, or $6,000,000.

Granted that building activity will increase in the future as it has in the past, business will be reaching ten million point long before 1923, and the results will show those changes which will make it Atlanta, 1923, a bigger, better city than ever.

Lastly, they claim that home rule is but a slogan for the Irish, and that they have to fight the whole British Empire to get it.

Of course, it would be a simple matter for England to put down the rebellion, but there is anything like a rebellion started. A sharp, anchored off-Belfast would be a "barbaric" that "barbaric" and result of the absolute paralyzation of all business in Ulster. The mail from all the world would be stopped, also the telegraph, no customs could be collected. It would be simple. And it is probable because of its simplicity that England has paid no attention to the vehement utterances of Sir Edward Carson and his followers—the same sort of talk, by the way, which resulted in the hanging of Robert Emmett as a rebel.

The establishment of an Irish parliament subject to the complicated restrictions of the home rule bill could only provide fresh opportunity for destruction by the nationalist members retained at Westminster.

The only means of arriving at a permanent settlement of the Irish question is through the growing consciousness of the Irish people that Ireland's interests are bound up with those of Great Britain.

Under the imperial parliament alone the interests here protected are those of the British Empire. An Irish parliament can have no other issue but discord, corruption and violent factional struggles.

It is necessary to lay stress on the hollowness of the proposal that home rule means nothing more than a provincial legislature similar to the provincial legislatures of Canada.

The attempt to deprive the people of their rights as citizens of the United Kingdom under the proposal of the imperial parliament, is a gross violation of the principles of justice. It is the duty of the British people to support the imperial parliament, and to oppose any attempt to deprive the people of their rights as citizens of the United Kingdom.

WHAT ALL THE TROUBLE IN IRELAND'S ABOUT

BY ALBERT FORD FERGUSON.

WHAT'S the reason for all this row in Ireland?

One hundred years ago this was a banking man for wearing the green, so the old song ran, because they wanted to rule the rest.

Now, the searers of the orange are reported to be raising five million dollars' worth of funds, and an army of fighting men, make the robes of themselves, in brief, to resist the imposition of home rule.

What can all this mean?

The English, gave the world the strange spectacle of a nation of 30,000,000 people dwelling in a single night, these orange-donning, eagle-eyed, and that applied progress everywhere for every other nation in the world.

A long time ago, when the law of the commons and through Wales, it has always been a minority in parliament and has never been able to get the will of the people enacted into law.

The Unionist party, which is really an English party, has a great power in English politics, and even in Ireland, and Belfast is the stronghold of the party. Belfast ranks fourth among the cities of England, South of London, and Ireland, and carries on a tremendous business.

Situated in the north of Ireland, Ulster is the section that was settled first by the English, and it is different from the remainder of Ireland in that it has a majority of English people, and the educational level and absenteeism, and the remainder of Ireland, there were none of these things.

The Nationalist party, which is really an Irish party, has a great power in Irish politics, and even in England, and Belfast is the stronghold of the party. Belfast ranks fourth among the cities of England, South of London, and Ireland, and carries on a tremendous business.

dominated by an inner organization known as the United Irish League. This organization, Prof. Kettle, a well known Nationalist scholar, characterized in the following significant statement:

"The main role of membership there are no landlords or ex-landlords. Some of the rich man's men, bankers who regulate our finances, the railway or transport men who control our trade, even the leading cattlemen, who handle most of our produce, are not to be found in the ranks."

The United Irish League is made up of the privileged class. It is because of this situation that most of the money for carrying out the home rule program has been raised in Ulster, while this party has been a vast majority in Ireland ever since the union with England, Scotland, and Wales, it has always been a minority in parliament and has never been able to get the will of the people enacted into law.

early days of the century, Ulster Irish parliament that is to be organized. They will be a real national in the management of national affairs, whereas they have been all along the controllers of the destinies of the people, despite their small numbers.

They oppose home rule on the grounds that it will hurt Ireland financially. They point out the fact that a large part of the prosperity of Ireland today—and Ireland is one of the most prosperous sections of the globe today—is due to the credit and financial assistance obtained from the treasury of the empire through the imperial parliament in London. They claim, with much justice, that the taxpayers of Ireland, who are not to be burdened, cannot expect to be able to carry on the government in the way it has been carried on.

Lastly, they claim that home rule is but a slogan for the Irish, and that they have to fight the whole British Empire to get it.

SUMMARY OF THE HOME RULE BILL

Bill must be passed three times before May 9, 1914, to become a law over the veto power of the House of Lords.

Irish Parliament to consist of Senate of forty members and House of Commons of 101 members.

Peers are eligible to membership in both houses.

Irish parliament to have no power to make laws affecting:

- The crown.
- War.
- Army and navy.
- Treaties with foreign states or relations with other parts of the British Empire or affecting treaties.
