ATLANTA—"Jerry's Lamb."

FOREVER—Vaudeville. GRAY—Kiss-me-quick. BLY—Emma Bunting in "The Circus Girl."

Genuine novelty makes the bill at the Forth this week just what the review on Tuesday declared. "The best show since last winter." It is all because of the opening of the regular season and the appearance of some of the most distinguished of vaudeville headliners.

Alexander and Scott score a tremendous hit in their singing novelty. Alexander is exhibiting a wardrobe that is the handsomest that has been seen on the Forth stage.

The comedy part of the bill is in the hands of Willard Simms and company, and there is nothing funnier than his wall papering stunt.

All the other acts are of real quality and the bill is one of the best that has ever been seen at the Forth.

The popularity of Emma Bunting is being demonstrated in no uncertain manner this week at the Lyric, where immense audiences are crowding the seats every night and at the matinee to get a glimpse of the little actress in her new play, "The Circus Girl."

The several stock engagements in which Miss Bunting has appeared at Atlanta have endeared her to a host of theatergoers and the management of the Lyric could not have secured a better attraction to open the regular theatrical season. Of all the plays that Miss Bunting has offered to Atlanta theater-

Pretty Young Wife Sobs in Court as Husband Is Jailed

A G. Kent, 32 years of age, who gives his occupation as an advertising collector for moving picture shows, was bound over for trial to the city criminal court on a charge of cheating and swindling by City Recorder Pro Tem W. J. Preston Wednesday morning.

His pretty wife was at his side in police court and interrupted the proceedings with sobbing. When her husband was locked in a cell in default of bond fixed by the recorder she sobbed and declared that she had no friends upon which to live during his incarceration.

Kent is alleged to have passed a worthless check for $12.35 on J. H. Bolles, of 28 South Kirkwood street, in payment of a board bill. The paper was drawn on the National bank of Cuba, at Monaca, Cuba. It was returned to Atlanta marked "no funds."

CONDUCTOR AND NEGRO HURT IN TRAIN CRASH

Freight Hits Switch Engine on Georgia Road at Hurt Street

Officials of the Georgia railroad are endeavoring to fix the blame for a collision between freight train No. 210 and a switch engine at the Georgia railroad crossing at Hurt street Tuesday evening shortly before 8 o'clock.

Two trainmen, R. A. Ferret, switching conductor, and Emmet Smith, a negro brakeman, were hurt in the crash. Neither was seriously injured, it is believed.

The freight train was making a test run in an effort to show that an engineer on a train approaching Decatur could see another train standing in front of the depot there. The Georgia road is now being used by Engineer O'Hara, who was injured in a crash at Decatur two years ago. The latter claims that it was impossible for him to see a train standing in front of the station and that he ran a train he was driving headlong into it.

The crew of the switch engine maintain that they believed No. 210 would not be along until ten minutes later, and that they passed did not clear the track.

The four acts are brimful of intense dramatic incidents and delightful comedy, and in the hands of the Jewell Kelly company the play is making the biggest kind of a hit.

The story deals with the fluctuations in Wall street of the stock of the Ben Diablo mine. A strong effort is made by James Ferrell, the man from the west, to keep the stock above par, while his enemies try to hammer it down, and this furnishes a plot that bristles with excitement and interest.

The entire company appears in the play, and individual hits are being made by all the old favorites. Some good specialties are introduced between acts, adding a touch of vaudeville that is decidedly pleasing. During the week matinees will be given every afternoon at 8:00 and night performances at 8:30.

BEAVERS' FOES LONG WAY FROM HIS SCALP

Involving the Chief Cuts Little Figure in New Charter Election

The "Beavers issue" has affected the new charter one way or the other to date. It has not been a sufficiently conspicuous effect for the public to notice it, and they don't usually overlook such things when they are interested, which they are in this case.

The new charter will be voted on by the people in a special election September 24. If the people approve the charter, it will go into effect on January 1, 1914.

The charter provides, in place of the board of public safety, a board of police and fire departments. Technical advice will be given by the police board. That is, abolishes it as now constituted. Practically every member of the present police board, if the new charter goes into effect, will be a candidate for election to the board of public safety and a majority thereof will be elected, unless the political complexion of the city changes.

The abolition of the board of public safety, the anti-beavers forces tooust the chief, they must accept this.

They must get the charter adopted. They must get the anti-beavers ticket to council in the city primary, which comes on September 29.

But the anti-beavers board of public safety, under the new charter, will not limit their fight to the primary.

They will use the civil service (which the new charter retains) to elect the board, which they would have to find some way to get into the city.

It would be no cinch. The crowd who are supporting the charter are the crowd who will support beavers where he is. So far, there is no anti-beavers ticket in the field for council.

It doesn't seem as if the supporters of beavers had cause for pessimism, whether the new charter passes or survives.

UNCONSCIOUS ELEVEN DAYS, BOY STILL LIVES

Life of Charlie McAfee, Whose Skull Was Fractured August 24, Yet in Balance

Although he has been unconscious for some days with a fractured skull, the life of Charlie McAfee, fourteen-year-old son of Mrs. L. B. McAfee, 1000 Peachtree street, is not despaired of, according to the house surgeon at Grady hospital. So long as young McAfee is kept alive the chances for his ultimate recovery are good.

The unconscious boy is fed by a nasogastric tube. He has not opened his mouth and his breath is kept close until the food is sent through the tube, although young McAfee's throat muscles do not perform the function of swallowing.

McAfee sustained his injury when thrown from his bicycle on Peachtree street. He has not regained consciousness yet, while riding along Peachtree street. He has not regained consciousness for a single instant since.

His father, L. B. McAfee, lives in the corner of his twin brother, Harry, who made with his brother John, the boys have been inseparable companions since childhood. They were together when the accident occurred, and Harry has been a considerable since.

RECORDER RULES MOTHER MUST PUNISH CHILDREN

Brooks is Fined for Alleged Abuse, Although Mother Said She Gave Him Permission

Mrs. Anne Hanson and J. M. Brooks, who of 414 Mills street, were fined $10.00 for mistreatment of the children of the latter by City Recorder Pro Tem A. F. Preston Monday afternoon. The magistrate held that a mother must punish her own children if they need correction.

Mrs. Hanson and Brooks are counted as respectable people. They recently were distributed with private circles of the city. They asserted that the children were abused and mistreated by Brooks.

When they cited specific acts of alleged abuse, Mrs. Hanson told the recorder that she had given her cousin permission to punish her offspring.

This brought forth a vigorous reprimand from the magistrate.

"You have no right to delegate the punishment of your children to another person," he told her.

Neighbors asserted that it was not unusual for the four children to cry the food. They told of one instance where they said, the children had sought food and refuge from Brooks in a neighbor's house in the rear of their home.

LAKEVIEW VOTES ON KEEPING ITS CHARTER

Councilman Rosser Declares Neither Side Will Win by Over Three Votes

What is said to be one of the closest and hottest elections held in DeKalb county in years is in progress Wednesday at Lakeview, the suburb west of Atlanta. Councilman J. R. Rosser, who is under an act of the general assembly, is the only candidate for the charter of incorporation.

At 7 o'clock the vote stood 32 for giving the charter to 27 against, with a total of 59 votes to be cast. According to Councilman J. R. Rosser, the new charter, the vote will be so close that there will not be three votes difference.

M. C. Boone, the mayor of Lakeview, is away on a vacation. The legislative act putting it up to the people is doubtful whether the new charter will be enacted on the petition of citizens who objected to the incorporation of the town, and who wished to become a section of DeKalb county.

DANIEL BROTHERS' EMPLOYEES PULL FOR ATLANTA

Above are some of the attaches of Daniel Brothers who will see the ball game between the Gulls and the Crackers Wednesday afternoon. As many could leave the store at one time Wednesday morning lined up for the photographer. In the cut are M. G. Chapman, G. A. Anderson, J. M. Callaway, Fred M. Danforth, R. E. Mackey, Ernest Allen, J. D. Westbrook, Tom Myrick, Tech Richards, C. J. Camp, A. W. Patterson, A. W. Long, J. E. Price, L. S. Stroble, T. M. Robinson, D. M. Mackey, Harry T. Ingham, Ray Taylor, Tom Henshaw, J. M. Webb, J. A. White, Z. J. Daniel and Mrs. Julia Patten, spouses.

The Daniel clerks are ardent fans. They had a baseball team of their own this summer which almost won the pennant in an amateur league. Practice rooting for their own side has developed their lungs to such an extent that collectively they expect to root louder than any other aggregation at Wednesday's game.

Miss Julia Patten, stenographer at the store, is going to be the mascot of the clerks. She is the warmest fan of the whole bunch, the boys at the store assure. Also, she is some rooster. She is going to be yell master, or mistress, rather, and if anybody needs any urging to make a noise he is going to get it. Believe her!

Just a drop on handkerchief or clothing or on the skin. It is harmless and not greasy or sticky. Has a pungent odor, not disagreeable, but instantly drives away mosquitoes, flies, gnats and other insects. Three sizes; 15c, 25c, 50c. At all Jacobs' Pharmacy Stores.—(Adv.)

ROTARY DELEGATES TELL OF CLUB WORK

"Not a Business Swapping Organization, but a Parliament of Business"

The fall meaning of Rotary club work, and the part the Atlanta Rotary club is expected to play in advancing the best interests of this community were explained in detail at a meeting of the Piedmont Tuesday afternoon. Ivan E. Allen and Albert S. Adams, delegates to the fourth national convention of Rotary clubs, were back from Buffalo filled with enthusiasm over the ideas they had gathered there.

Since the recent organization of a Rotary club in Atlanta, the wrong impression has grown up in some quarters as to the purpose of the organization. It is not a selfish organization. It is not a business swapping organization. The representative of any particular business is a member of the association. The Rotary club holds his membership not to boost his private interests or his individual business, but to represent and serve the interests of all Atlantians who are engaged in business.

Mr. Allen and Mr. Adams both made forceful and enthusiastic speeches. Mr. Adams, quoting from a speech made by President Glenn C. Mead of the national organization, said:

"Rotary clubs have attained its full perfection as long as there is a vestige of the notion that Rotary clubs exist for the purpose of exchanging business among their members. Our first two conventions have emphatically repudiated this idea, and President Hartley dealt it a death blow in his masterful analysis of Rotary delivered before the convention in 1912. The misconception applies to clubs in the minds of outsiders who are restricted to one representative from each trade or professional calling. It requires only a moment's thought and reflection to grasp the real reason for this form of organization."

Since the Rotary club is a commercial organization it could not include every business proprietor or manager in a large city, without becoming unwieldy and cumbersome. The ideal Rotary club is the most representative commercial organization and business club the world has known. It is a parliament of business where every business institution has its representative and may be heard on a basis of absolute equality.

"Service and not self is the true motto of all Rotarians."

W. S. ELKIN TO GET BIG SILVER SERVICE

Gift From Revall Clubs Is Expected to Arrive Here Soon

A handsome and costly silver service presented to William S. Elkin Atlanta draught, when he retired from the presidency of the Associated Retail Clubs at the recent convention of that organization in Boston, is expected to arrive within the next few weeks. It first will be placed on exhibition in New York and Chicago.

The silver service is said by those who saw it in Boston to be one of the most exquisite ever presented to an individual. It contains pieces of every description and for every use. It probably will be placed on display here upon its arrival.

Mr. Elkin was elected president of the Retail club six months after he became a member of the association. He retired on September 16, after serving a year. Formerly he was president of the National Retail Draughts' association.

Those in attendance at the convention, which closed on September 15, brought to Atlanta the news that when the preliminary of the service was made, the 1,600 delegates filled the hall with cheers.

The third wife of a shoemaker in Kansas, who has been divorced twice, has just inherited $50,000. He will now be good and stick to his last.

The Established Park Policy.

It is to be hoped that there will be no further efforts at this time or by any persons to divert Atlanta's park property from its rightful uses. This issue has been repeatedly raised within the past few years and in each instance it has been settled as it should be.

The recent request for the use of the Piedmont park stadium for a circus performance aroused such a storm of public protest that the application was very properly withdrawn.

When Council decided a number of years ago that Piedmont park should be dismantled of the existing buildings in order that it might serve the exclusive and permanent purpose of public recreation, the real development of Atlanta's park system began.

Oh, yes, and it's the open circus season, too. Even the Outlook admits that President Wilson may be right in some things.

It is getting round to the time of the year when the coal and wood man takes home.

Before giving advice to a woman find out what brand she wants, or a man, either.

The wise man follows the lines of least resistance by telling all women how well they look and all mothers their babies are beautiful.

The South's Opportunities For Cattle Raising.

Whether or not the South realizes its natural resources for livestock production, shrewd syndicates in other sections evidently do. A Missouri syndicate is planning to buy ten thousand acres of land in Louisiana, where it expects to establish a great cattle range.

This friendly invasion, so long as it is free from monopolistic designs, deserves and will receive a hearty welcome. The South's door is open to new workers and new capital, if they come as true Americans and in a spirit of wholesome business; for here is a vast empire whose abundance of natural wealth and opportunity is sufficient for all who would take an honest, constructive part in its development.

These Americans in Mexico are probably glad to take a summer vacation, anyhow. We repeat that dog days are a big improvement on the common conception of them.

It takes a lot of effort to enable a man to order scrambled eggs in a cheap restaurant.

It is surprising how much news people can give a reporter that is not intended for publication.

Voices of Prosperity.

The optimistic interviews in Tuesday's Journal with well-adviced merchants, bankers and real estate dealers presage a season of brimming prosperity for Georgia and the South in general and particularly for Atlanta. These close observers of every business trend and omen declare with one accord that good times are not only ahead but are already here and that conditions in the large are sounder and brighter today than they have been for many an autumn past.

Retail merchants have anticipated extraordinary sales and have purchased accordingly both in amount and variety of stocks. Their buyers lately returned from the east report an atmosphere of unclouded confidence in that section. Pending legislation in Congress, far from having had a dulling or disquieting effect, has led economic conditions generally undisturbed. No one is troubled over what is going to happen. Everyone is intent over what is actually taking place and through the wholesome activity of the present day looks trustfully forward to the months and years ahead.

Wholesale dealers are no less assured and encouraged. Their representatives on the roads have made records in August sales. Orders are booked as far ahead as October or November, an indication, as a member of one firm declares, "of renewed confidence and the abandonment of the recent hand-to-mouth policy of purchasing goods." Collections are emphatically better than they have been in many seasons; credit is easier and safer and trade is accordingly leaping forward.

Bankers are particularly impressed by the agricultural outlook in Georgia and the South at large, and their interests, like those of the merchant and the farmer, are fortified by an adequate supply of money for moving crops. The anxiety that was once felt in this regard melted completely away when Secretary McAdoo placed fifty millions of treasury funds at the disposal of Southern and Western banks on easy terms for crop-moving purposes. That, indeed, was a turning point for business throughout the country and especially in the South. It relieved the strain upon the larger centers of finance and released, for use in ordinary commercial and industrial enterprises, money which heretofore has been held for the extraordinary needs of the harvest season.

Since the announcement of this timely and patriotic policy of the Wilson administration, economic conditions have steadily improved and confidence, which is the very heart-beat of business, has grown continually stronger. Back of the activity of trade both retail and wholesale, back of the sober optimism which merchants and bankers feel, lies that primal source of good times in Georgia—abundant crops. Less cotton was planted this year but every acre has been more carefully tended. More attention than ever before has been paid to the production of food supplies, corn, oats, wheat and other necessities. Sun and rain have wrought together upon the fields with nature's kindest alchemy. There will be more to eat, more to buy and sell in Georgia this autumn than in many a year gone by, and there will be more money to keep the channels of trade strong and free.

Atlanta's inherent vigor asserts itself even when other towns and other sections are depressed. When, therefore, the country as a whole is astray with prosperity we may expect this city to move forward as never before. As the commercial center of the new wondrously wide South, Atlanta is entering the richest era of its history.

When you find a woman who admits she is ugly, believe anything she says! The income tax will go to work a hardship on some of these poor millionaires.

Now and then a convention speech reminds us that we have an ex-president or so in our midst. "We don't like for these things to happen," said J. Pierpont Morgan when informed of the New Haven wreck. We are glad to hear the great man express his disapproval.

Tribulations of a Book Buyer

In his article on "The Tribulations of an Amateur Book Buyer" in the September Atlantic, John J. Hervey complains, cheerfully enough, of some things which are not likely to be specifically corrected. All books cannot be produced in a format and in a style which satisfies the book buyer who dwells in a flat and has to economize in his buying, but Mr. Hervey writes in the most of one who would like to see a translation of a selected list of books published in a format which would appeal to his generous taste. He regrets, particularly, a commendable new translation of a selected list of books published in a format which would appeal to his generous taste.

Mystic Numbers in Banking

If the bankers lately in conference cannot have a great central bank with numerous agencies, they will accept a division of this shower into five regional reserve banks but no more. They will not hear to as many as twelve such banks.

Why not more than five? What is the mystic number and put twelve out of the reckoning? We can understand why the administration bill starts its federated system of bank and currency reform with twelve regional reserve institutions. Financially considered, the country divides itself naturally into six major districts.

The government already recognizes a division into nine financial districts by the location of its sub-treasuries, as follows: San Francisco, Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Louis, New Orleans.

The government's plan of the pending currency bill has presumably recognized in the larger growth of the country a natural development of three more districts in the south between Baltimore and New Orleans, one in the far west between St. Louis and San Francisco, and one in the great northwest.

This the number twelve seems to have a rational basis. But what is the rational basis of five? Can it be that it sounds more like the darning figure one than twelve can be made to sound in the banking ear?

The Point of Bergson's Philosophy

Forty or more years ago Huxley made the striking statement that some of the dramatic incidents of English history, and particularly the one made famous by Shakespeare, in which the removal of the great seal from the country was made the basis for the attack on Henry VIII's famous predecessor in office, Cardinal Wolsey.

Henry VIII made Wolsey, chief chancellor, and virtually ruler of the kingdom. In this capacity he had charge of the great seal, which was supposed never to be removed from England. When Lord Haldane desired to visit this country, he had not only to gain the king's consent, but also to put the great seal formally in charge of a commission.

Later, when his enemies had undermined him with the king one of the formal accusations on which they rested their case was that he had violated the law in removing the great seal from the kingdom. Shakespeare pictures the scene in the great third act of "Henry VIII" where the duke tells Wolsey to "render up the great seal presently into our hands."

As for the stream of life, which in its various aspects constitutes the real world of Bergson, he would insist that it is more than mere knowledge, which is an instrument developed for practical purposes. His use is essential. Thinking is not to be banished by Bergson. Only by thought can the value of intuitive ideas be tested. Set out to write an article, for instance, all sorts of ideas relating to the subject chosen may come boiling up in your mind. But only through the intellect can you distinguish the good from the bad.

Bergson's point is that the significance of life comes through insight as well as through the logic of reason. An interesting and fairly simple account of Bergson's philosophy may be found in "The Creative Mind," published by the Dodge Publishing Company, New York. One is H. Wilson Carr's "Henry Bergson: The Philosophy of Change," the other, "Bergson," by Joseph Solomon—Kansas City Star.

Five Rounds of Turkey Trot

First Round: Beat the tom-tom, pound the keys. Crook the elbows, bend the knees.

Second Round: Set the masher, climb the flat. Dip and glide and whirl and twist. (Have no heart for friend or brother. One hard blow deserves another.)

Third Round: For each bruise that the enemy sends you, Leave a mark that's black and blue.

Fourth Round: When a couple ventures near, Bend low the body to the floor. Trip the man and kick his ankle—Wounds like that are bound to rank.

Fifth Round: Then to soothe the brutal heart, Tear off half the lady's skirt.

Trainer's Hint: Who he turkey trots this way, Lives to dance another day.—HENRY STANLEY HASKINS, in the New York Times.

Pointed Paragraphs

The most annoying thing in connection with matrimony is married life.

Every rich man imagines he would enjoy helping his poor kin—if he has any.

A woman worries more about her complexion than she does about her prospective-harp and crown.

THE SICK ROOM

By DR. FRANK CRANE. (Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane.)

The newspaper pages are filled with titles of vigorous life. Advertisers exploit their goods, theaters display their attractions, there are the activities of crime, of politics, of sport; the world is full of sparkle and spangles beneath the reader's eye.

And all the while a great part of these readers are in a condition where the arena of strife does not interest them, and the warmth of the world's blood chills them to a speak of the sport.

They are shut up in darkened bedrooms, they lie in hospital wards, they sit solitary by the windows of the sitting room, the widows of the sick room.

Do not imagine that because you are not well you are out of the game. Opportunity is still yours. Some of the best and finest work done for the human race is done by the sick people.

You may no longer be a center of active work in the business of money getting; you cannot so to your office nor attend to your house, but you can do better than that. You can be a center of cheer and encouragement to all who are ill.

If you will put away self-pity, if you will not complain, if you will be kind and helpful, if you will be in the business of being unwell as you were in the street and mart when you were well, if in your weakness you will maintain a stout heart, you cannot realize how you will radiate life and power into all who come in contact with you.

There's a little old blind grandmother in a certain home who, by her spirit of ality and her sense of humor, has been a source of joy and comfort to her neighbors. She is just as brave and hopeful now as ever. Around his affliction have bloomed priceless flowers of love and tenderness, of whose existence he was never before aware.

Your sickness may be a privilege. It will show you what you can take if heretofore, the very best things in life. You are out of the game of getting-on, but you are playing a certain game of life of inestimable value may be made clear and usable to you.

In fact, the best part of living is not monopolized by the healthy people. Sickness has its spirit-compensation. Life is very great and wide and high, it has been thought that the best part of living is not monopolized by the healthy people.

In your quiet room you may find your soul, your rest, your peace, your joy, your strength, your courage, that when you grow well again, if so be that shall come to pass, you will look back upon these days of your illness with a gladness that your eyes and the desert remembers the oasis.

The Lord High Chancellor

AN INDIAN BATTLEGROUND

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

"Shan Kive" is the name given to the unique festival annually celebrated at the foot of Pikes Peak by white men and red men, celebrating the peace of the day and yet holding in dear memory the glories of the past. It is held on the morning of the 15th of August, and is held on the morning of the 15th of August, and is held on the morning of the 15th of August.

Indian warfare was swift and cruel, but not nearly so deadly as at first one imagines. A few hours, a few weeks, and all traces of battle were gone, with possibly the exception of a few scattered graves. Pikes Peak is so accessible to travel that perhaps more people ascend it than any other mountain in the world, where they look out on a vast area of the mountains on three sides and billowing plains on the fourth. Very few of these realize that here they are looking upon the bloodiest battleground in all the history of fighting among American Indians.

There was good reason for it. The range is only a few miles from the mountains to the south and the colder regions to the north. From the mountains, steep clear, cold water runs down and out upon the plains, and the mountains themselves are covered with snow. The mountains are valleys filled with brush, tall grasses and at some places tall spruce, which would hinder the progress of the Indians. Wild horses ran in herds of vast numbers on the plains. Great herds of buffalo, in their migrations of winter pastures, were to be seen. Besides these there were the Comanches—closely allied to the Utes—the Kiowas, the Pawnees and others.

For centuries the Utes held possession of all the mountains. They are of the Shoshoni branch and an offshoot of the Montezuma. The Sioux were driven there from various quarters of the land as the white men came. The Utes were the only Indians in South Carolina when first known to the conquerors. The Arapahos and Cheyenes probably were driven from the mountains of the Great Lakes region. Besides these there were the Comanches—closely allied to the Utes—the Kiowas, the Pawnees and others.

At the base of Pikes Peak is a little valley carrying a stream of water. The Indians, who were here to trade skins with the Indians, named Pikes Peak, Qui Boute, or Boiling Fountain, because at its source were sulphur springs. Pleasure-Loving Girls

(Annes Reppner, in the Atlantic.)

Miss Jane Adams, in her careful study of the Chicago streets, speaks of the "pleasure-loving girls" who demand that each evening that bring her some measure of recreation. Miss Adams admits that such a girl is best by night; dangerous, but does not appear to think that she will maintain an unreasonably one. A very capable and intelligent woman who has had a long experience in the management of decently conducted halls in New York and elsewhere—dances halls sorely needed to supplant the vicious places of entertainment which are the result of degradation when in hand—was asked at a meeting last winter whether the girls for whose welfare she was pleading were staying at home.

"Who is Mr. Muldoon?" asked the attorney. "The janitor," she answered. "Who carried off my waste basket?" "Mr. Reilly," she said. "And who is Mr. Reilly?" "He's the man that cleans the rooms." Mr. Knox looked sternly at the boy and said: "I wanted to see you by the first name here. We don't 'mistake' them in this office. Do you understand?" "Yes, sir," and the boy retired.

Quips and Quiddities

Mr. Knox, secretary of state in Taft's cabinet, was formerly engaged in the practice of law in Fitzburg. One day, says a friend, Mr. Knox was put to it first on his arrival at his office that everything was topsy-turvy and that the temperature was much too low for comfort, summoning his office boy, a lad who recently entered in his employ, the lawyer asked what had raised every window in the place on such a cold morning.

"Mr. Muldoon, sir," was the answer. "Who is Mr. Muldoon," asked the attorney. "The janitor," she answered. "Who carried off my waste basket?" "Mr. Reilly," she said. "And who is Mr. Reilly?" "He's the man that cleans the rooms." Mr. Knox looked sternly at the boy and said: "I wanted to see you by the first name here. We don't 'mistake' them in this office. Do you understand?" "Yes, sir," and the boy retired.

In a few minutes he reappeared and in a shrill, piping voice announced: "There's a gentleman that wants to see you, P. Muldoon."

Johnny's mother had instituted a fine of 10 cents for every spot made on the tablecloth. One day Johnny was talking to his father and he said: "I was looking for the cloth at his plate."

"John, what are you doing?" said his mother at last. "Nothing. I was just trying to rub two spots into one"—Judge.

"He wanted the ark," replied the wit.

MOTION PICTURE FILMS MUST NOW BE CENSORED

Drastic Ordinance Passed by Council—Name of McDaniel Street Not Changed

General council Tuesday afternoon passed an ordinance requiring a certificate of motion picture films by the censor before the trustees...

The ordinance also prohibits the wearing of "immoral, indecent or suggestive costumes" by women on the stages of motion picture theaters.

Miss Annie Wells, a well known Atlanta lady who owns McDaniel street, was vigorously opposed to the change and did a deal of missionary work among council members.

Charles H. Kelley, elected an alderman from the Second ward to fill the unexpired term of John E. McDaniel, resigned.

W. W. TINDALL NAMED JUVENILE COURT JUDGE

Well-Known Lawyer Will Have Jurisdiction Over All Children's Offenses

W. W. Tindall, who for the last two years has been chief probation officer of the juvenile court, and who is also an attorney, Wednesday was appointed the office of judge of the juvenile court.

The children's court was become effective in Atlanta in April, 1911, since that time the matters coming before the court have so increased that it became a tax on the superior court judges to supervise the juvenile court.

At present the children's court will be held at the detention home at 164 Central avenue. But soon the three-story brick building at 98 Trinity avenue, will be ready for permanent occupation.

Clanny Scotts Meet "Braw and Early" On September 5th

The Atlanta Scottish association will hold the regular monthly clan meeting of the "Klax Begun" at such a meeting of the night of September 5th.

Chief A. Crickshank has sent out letters to the members of the clan reminding them of the meeting. The meeting is clear to any one who has studied Robert Burns' works for two years or more.

The circular also advises: "Bring an antique 'Lion' or 'ye' 'ken' at the meeting. From this it is evident that the association is increasing its membership."

Georgia Board of Entomology Thinks Cotton Pest Will Come Soon

Not until the cotton boll weevil makes its appearance in Georgia, the state board of entomology has announced that the state quarantine against the pest will be enforced.

The state board of entomology has recommended a plan prohibiting the shipment of cotton from into Georgia from other states unless the entomologist of that state certifies that the same is free from the pest.

GIFTED ATLANTA GIRL RETURNS HOME AFTER SUCCESSFUL CAREER IN NEW YORK

Takes Charge of the Oakland City Branch Library and Brings Delight to Hearts of Atlanta Girls and Boys With the Stories She Tells Them

Miss Mary Brown, who until recently has been one of the most valued members of the New York public library staff, is one of the constantly increasing number of Atlanta girls who have made a signal success in their chosen profession.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Brown, of Kansas park. The children of the slums in New York she is known as the little library lady.

For four years she worked with Irish, Italian and Jewish children, many of whom could not speak a word of English, and through her struggles with refractory words she has come to have a good knowledge of the language.

The Atlanta library has tried a number of times to secure her services, but she has refused to give her up. This year, however, she has been prevailed upon to be at home (she won't tell why, but there have been a number of interesting offers).

She graduated from the Atlanta library training school in 1908 and shortly thereafter went to New York. It was not long before her untiring efforts along with children made itself manifest.

Rev. McMahon Called

(Special Dispatch to the Journal) EATONTON, Ga., Sept. 2.—Rev. A. M. McMahon, of Orlin, has been called to the First Baptist church here, which has been without a pastor for a number of months.

At the first stop hour at the Oakland City library over fifty children heard her tell stories, and her soft, well-modulated, musical voice and the delightful stories that she told caught their fancy at once.

Following the plan pursued in New York, Miss Brown will make the branch libraries club centers. She will form boys' clubs and girls' clubs, and they will be allowed to meet in the library.

Miss Wooten, the librarian at the Carnegie library, is delighted with her good fortune in securing Miss Brown, and is only fearful that the gift may put in a rival claim for the gifted young girl.

At present the children's court will be held at the detention home at 164 Central avenue. But soon the three-story brick building at 98 Trinity avenue, will be ready for permanent occupation.

Books of Prison Department Audited

An audit recently completed by Alonzo Richardson & Co., certified accountants, has shown that the state prison department is in a most excellent condition. This audit was made at the instance of the commission and covers a period of six months.

Miss Mary Brown, who for four years has been valued member of the New York public library staff, has accepted an offer from the Atlanta library and has begun her work with Atlanta children. The upper picture shows Miss Brown, with three of her new friends, Wilmer Kimbrey, Edward Lawton and Bessie Lee Norris. Lack of Room Forces State Institution to Close Doors to Any More Students

Owing to lack of room, the Georgia Normal and Industrial school at Milledgeville has been forced to turn away more than half the applicants this year. The doors of the college are now closed to students for this season, much to the regret of the management.

In explanatory letters to prospective students who were turned away, M. M. Parks, president of the school, states that such action was necessary because the state has not been able to erect

Not a Fairy Story

Once upon a time there was a shrewd person who wanted to reach a very influential man. He could not get to see him in person but he learned that he was a constant reader of a certain newspaper.

So the man who wanted something wrote an advertisement stating his proposition and worded in the way he believed would appeal to the ONE MAN he wanted to reach.

He put it in a prominent place in the newspaper read by the ONE MAN.

He kept it there and before many days rolled around it did just what he hoped it would, brought him to the attention of the customer.

Both profited—for this is a true advertising story.

Now the point to you lies in the fact that there is probably some message in the advertising of today's Journal that is written expressly for you.

Are you a reader of the advertising so you can catch the message? It may be important.

Cavet Was No Match for the Home Club When the Hits Meant Runs

The time was Tuesday afternoon and the place was Ponce de Leon park, and maybe the Cracker ball tossers didn't do their full duty in shipping one over on the Mobile outburst.

All the way through the ball game was a stunner, but up to the sixth round, it was even better than words can express.

Gilbert Price had just one bad inning the third—and from this he managed to pull out most nobly after it looked like one or two runs would most surely come home.

Harry Chapman was shot on foul balls throughout the match, and his quick thinking on Patelet's hit in front of the plate in the fourth showed that he did think fast.

O'Dell gave a demonstration in the fourth of an error giving a help to the club. Agler had singled and tried to go from first to third on Long's bunt.

Dent to Work In Opposition to B. Campbell

Wednesday's Game Means Much, and Both Teams Are Out to Win—Start to Be Made Promptly at 3:30

Two games in the rear of first place and playing the game of baseball as it is played in the Atlanta club will Wednesday afternoon make a decent draw to within one game of first place.

On Wednesday it will doubtless be the Atlanta club which will be the main work and when the first game is usually a grand fight, the course, it takes good hitting, errorless fielding and steady work on the part of the players.

The game Wednesday is a crucial one for the Atlanta club. It will move to within one game of first place in bringing the Thursday battle with the Cracker's chance for a tie and the Mobile's pennant.

WON'T COUNT THE PENNANT WON UNTIL VERY LAST GAME

"No, I won't predict a pennant for my club," says Mike Finn, of Mobile, who is the kind that counts on claiming a pennant at this critical stage of the game.

You Can't Beat Good Hurling Coupled With Hard Hitting

KNOBBS WAS TO GET A TWO-SPOT FOR THE JOB, ANYWAY---BUT!

---BY FARREN

THE SPORTLIGHT BY GRANTLAND RICE

FABLE.
Once upon a time the Giants and Phillies met in a ball game or a series in Philadelphia without a riot, a pitched battle or any outbreak more serious than a few broken heads. At least, the bulk of it was baseball and not a moving picture show, seeking to depict the French Revolution.

Moral—Fable is right.

We are yet unable to understand why the Giants and Phillies meet with bats and gloves. What they need is swords and rapiers, poison and dynamite.

STILL THERE.
Mack's team, after winning sixteen out of seventeen, loses a double-header to the Yanks. Caldwell, ineffective most of the year, shuts the Athletics out with two hits. The Phillies hammer Marquard, Tesreau and Mathewson in a row. Johnson holds the Red Sox to one hit in ten rounds and loses. Then the next day Groom and Engle win in a canter. Cleveland wins three out of four from the Athletics and loses five straight to Washington and Boston. Yet there are those who desire to pry into the future of baseball affairs and who insist upon knowing in advance what may happen.

If any one should attempt to pick the world series winner upon the form both clubs have shown for about a month, the only answer would be that neither could help from losing out.

On the other hand, a club that starts sprinting from the barrier and swings into a long lead is likely to have as much speed for the stretch as one that has loafed along through July.

AS FOR ANGLES.
In the way of queer and unaccountable angles, here's another for you to dissect: Mathewson is leading the National league in victories and pitching upon his entire season's form the best ball he has shown for a number of years. Yet, within the last three weeks upon three occasions he has yielded eight runs within three innings—a saunter that rarely befalls the lowliest. After each setback he has come forward with the old stuff, showing that it was no arm trouble or any illness. He was in fine shape at all three starts, and yet combining these three rapid ambuscades into nine-inning games he was assailed for twenty-four runs—a higher average for nine innings than he generally shows for nine or ten games. Which goes to show that one day you are there in this game and the next you are somewhere else.

In the meanwhile Ty Cobb reared the batting crest Saturday night, slipping on by Jackson. Force of habit, in the end, will generally tell the story.

Ty isn't out of danger yet, but as a rule he generally hits better in September than in June, July or August. Look back through the dope and you will find his heaviest batting has been in April, May and September. In June, July and August, his pitching is generally more effective, when the heat thaws out the sinews of the arm and blurs the batting eye, which may account for the answer in part.

HARD LUCK VS. HARD LUCK.
There is quite a difference of opinion as to what constitutes hard luck. According to Connie Mack there is no such thing and with one fell swoop he peels the hide off the alibi.
"I don't consider," says Connie, "that I have had any hard luck recently. It is true enough that I have had eleven men crippled or sick but I have always managed to have nine men on the playing field."
We've heard most of the others roar like wounded sea lions with only two men hard. Wonder what they'd say with eleven out of hard.

Bollie Zeider has his head a bunton on his head and one on his foot. Some days if he isn't careful or lucky, he is going to have the decency of a line sitting down without the presence of poignant pains and considerable distress.

"Kid" Herman Wins

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 2.—"Kid" Herman of New Orleans was awarded the decision over Eddie Coulon, also of New Orleans, at the end of an eight-round bout here tonight. Not more than a dozen clean blows were struck, but Herman's aggressiveness gave him the advantage. The men were "bantamweights."

Razing of Buildings on Peachtree at Linden Forecasts Important Building Announcement—Tenants Move Into Hurt Building Before Elevators Start—Everybody is Talking Cotton—Real Estate

THE razing of a store on Peachtree street is for business concerns the announcement with a few days of a large building to be erected at No. 458-1/2 Peachtree. The site is adjacent opposite the Potts building, and is at present occupied by a brick store.

Workmen have already begun to tear down one of the buildings. This was occupied by the Peachtree Dairy, which Turma, Black & Calhoun leased on Peachtree street at $100 a month, or $800 a year.

Some other interesting lease announcements are pending on Peachtree street, and they are at rates of rental that justify front foot valuations established on this thoroughfare.

If stores as far out as Tenth street bring $75 a front, the outlook for Peachtree street for business concerns at intervals all along.

Office Building News. Although the elevators will not be in operation until some time next week, four tenants of the Hurt building have already moved in. Workmen are now finishing the top floor and the sidewalks are being laid on Edgewood avenue. The building will be formally opened on October 1. A force on Wednesday removed the exchange place so that the theater patrons would be inconvenienced.

Over half the space of the building has been leased, and it is estimated that all of it will be taken by November 1. The large space at the entrance will be taken either by the Continental Trust company or some bank.

There are enough applications for space on hand to fill the building and it is believed that the rest of the large Peachtree lot will be improved within two years.

At the time the Hurt and Hildebrand buildings were started there were 40,000 offices in Atlanta with less than a dozen vacancies. These two buildings, and the former Silvey building, which is being remodelled into offices, will give 1,000 or more additional offices to the city.

The new buildings offer an opportunity to tenants who want suites of offices, or whole floors, that they have been unable heretofore to get in the present crowded office buildings. Several such leases have been made in the Hurt building and have been applied for in the Hildebrand.

This condition is in contrast with con-
